ENTIRE ATLANTIC FLEET ORDERED IN READINESS TO LEAVE FOR MEXICO

4:30 P. M.
PRESIDENT WILSON LEAVES CORNISH FOR WASHINGTON THIS AFTERNOON ON ACCOUNT OF GRAVITY OF MEXICAN SITUATION.

MORE BORDER FIGHTING

Secretary Garrison Says Bandit Raids Have No Political Significance—May Dispatch More Troops.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., Aug. 11.—5 P. M. Orders have been issued to the entire Atlantic squadron, now stationed at Newport, Rhode Island, to prepare for service in Mexican waters.
President Starts Back.
Cornish, N. H., Aug. 11.—President Wilson left Cornish at three o'clock for Washington to confer with the officials there on the Mexican situation which he considers most grave.

Washington, Aug. 11.—General Carranza, through his Washington agents, today notified Secretary Lansing that the Mexican people view with displeasure any attempt tending to frustrate the success of Carranza's armed forces. Carranza's message referred to the Pan-American conference and was taken as plainly signifying he would not agree with its action toward Mexican affairs.
General Carranza's agency gave out the text of identical notes which he addressed to Argentina and Chile, protesting against their participation in the Pan-American conference. Carranza evidently had been misinformed that Brazil refused to participate and sent a message to Rio Janeiro expressing his gratification. He took occasion, however, in the note to Brazil, to assail the Brazilian minister in Mexico City, who is now leaving for the United States.

Strengthen Border Force.
In accordance with Secretary Lansing's announcement yesterday that it might be necessary to strengthen the forces on the border because of brigandage, orders probably will be issued soon to hold troops in readiness if not actually to move them. Garrison said today that he had conferred with his staff on the subject.
The conditions on the border," said he, "have nothing to do with the fighting in Mexico and no significant significance. Lawless people are using this time of excitement for an opportunity to plunder and steal, and we are not sure that all the law-breakers are Mexicans. Some of them we know are May Call Militia.

Under Major General Funston's command on the border are nine regiments of cavalry, six and one-half regiments of infantry and two regiments of field artillery, in all about 14,000 troops. At other posts in continental United States, are about 12,000 more mobile troops. It was suggested today that the need for troops became imperative it might be necessary to use some National Guardmen.

ENGLAND SENDS BIG GOLD CONSIGNMENT

Twenty-Five Million Dollars in American Eagles Being Trans-Shipped.
New York, Aug. 11.—A considerable freight train around the shipment from England to this country of a large amount of gold, the sum being variously estimated at $25,000,000 to $25,000,000, the gold being in the form of American eagles, is being trans-shipped from Halifax to New York, it was taken by a British steamer, presumably under government control, to this city by special train.

J. P. Morgan & Company are the consignees, but the bankers refuse to give any information regarding the transaction, stating such details ought to come from London, where the shipment was arranged in response to extraordinary exchange conditions between that center and this city.

DANGEROUS TO GIVE LIE WHEN FIGHTING IN TRENCH

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Paris, July 20 (By mail).—Lying is punishable by death sometimes at the front. An eye witness tells the following story:
A German north of Arras, came out of his trench calling to the French troops opposite: "Comrades, England has made a cat's paw of you. Russia is beaten; Italy has been pushed; you are lost. Give up the fight."
His speech delivered, he was given time to drop back into his trench, then, spontaneously, from the French trenches, a perfect shower of trencher grenades followed. Explosions followed like a rumble of thunder and before the echo died, the Frenchmen were out of their trenches surging down on the Germans in an irresistible bayonet charge.
Two minutes later the entire section of German trench was won, the enemy's dead lay in piles and the remainder were prisoners.
"That's what we think of your speech," said the French to the Germans. "Besides the badmen get folks who tell lies!"

FOUR THOUSAND AT OPENING ON TUESDAY

FIFTEEN HUNDRED PAID ADMISSION, CHILDREN UNDER 14 SWELLING OPENING ATTENDANCE.

SPEEDY RACES TODAY

Even Larger Crowd at Grounds Today—Judging in Evidence During This Morning—Other Fair Notes.

Fifteen hundred paid admissions, in addition to the twenty-five hundred youngsters, were taken in at the opening of the big Janesville fair Tuesday. Yesterday being children's day, the "kiddies" took advantage of the free admission to the grounds, and they were largely responsible in making the day a success. Over four thousand attended the fair yesterday. The crowds this afternoon were estimated to be larger than yesterday, as many of the youngsters accompanied their parents, or were left free to attend on the second day. Today was set aside as Broadhead and Monroe day, many residents of these cities attending.

This Morning.
Indication this morning at the fair association grounds were not favorable for another big day of activity and amusement. From eight o'clock until noon, throngs of visitors from Broadhead and Monroe, accompanied by the Monroe band, together with a vast number of Janesville and other towns people, wended their way to the grounds to see the attractions planned for today. Even a larger attendance than Tuesday was expected by the fair management.

The addition of a few more concession stands, some of them being placed under the grandstand, has completely filled any possible concession space. From the grounds, all in the display was in evidence this morning, the stations and fine bred horses, sheep, cattle and fat swine exhibiting themselves for inspection at the west end of the grounds, while sheep and practically every exhibit on the display was being inspected by judges for the purpose of determining the various premiums at other sites. Anxious exhibitors watched the judging work, although no results will be known until Thursday at the earliest.

EXHIBITS ENJOYED

During this morning, the various exhibits were given much attention by the visitors. One display of great interest is the model kitchen, under the grandstand, and classes in the educational department. The kitchen was arranged by high school instructors of this city. The display, which is a model of a modern kitchen, is a kitchen cabinet and a kitchen sink with a drain, donated by George and Clemons. The vegetable, manual training, domestic science and art displays, all in the same department, are of special interest.

PROGRAM FOR TODAY

Today was Broadhead and Monroe day. The Monroe band furnishing music during the day, giving a fine concert during the afternoon. A free-for-all 100-yard dash was on the schedule for this afternoon, in addition to the various other events. The races that were to be greatly appreciated Tuesday. Three harness races provided plenty of interest on the track, with well known prospects entered. The tracks were well packed, and the condition of the races were expected to be broken in the events this afternoon.

SENATE IS OPPOSED TO SALARY ADVANCE

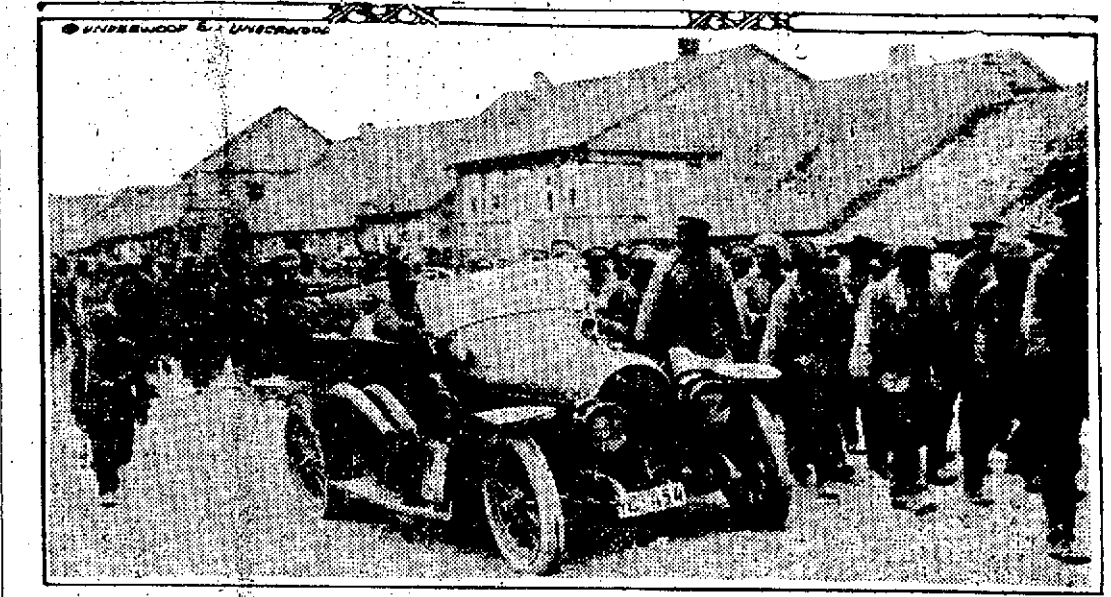

Fear Amendment to Constitution Providing More Pay to Lawmakers, Would Be Misconstrued.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Aug. 11.—The senate decided today that its motives in going on record in favor of amending the constitution to permit larger salaries for state legislators which is only $500 per term, would be misconstrued by the people and the Smith resolution on the subject was turned down by two to one vote.

The mother's pension law created by 1913 legislature will be left unamended, the senate nonconcurring in Caldwell's bill changing administration of the law.
The senate passed a bill restoring practical nurses who are not registered to their former standing which was taken away from them by passage of the revised medical law.
The finance committee's bill creating a legislative committee and board of estimate composed of a special committee of finance committee to sit between legislative sessions to study the state financial conditions, and prepare a budget for the succeeding legislature was ordered engrossed. The same plan is embodied in Exogmo bill for state counsel was killed in the assembly last week.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD HAVE THEIR DAY AT FRISCO

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
San Francisco, Aug. 11.—Woodmen of the World reigned supreme at the Panama Pacific exposition today. This was their "day." Thousands of members of the order poured into the grounds to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the order.
The medical examiners of the order are holding a special convention here. Physicians from nine states comprising the Pacific coast have been assigned to discuss the topic of "Unprofitable Risks."

MAKE NO EFFORTS TO DRAG FOR BODY OF DROWNED NURSE

Mystery Surrounds Death of Young Woman, Employed at Madison Sanatorium.

Madison, Aug. 11.—Bertha A. Eley, pretty 24-year-old nurse at the Madison sanatorium, was drowned accidentally or committed suicide yesterday afternoon in Lake Mendota. The body is still at the bottom of the lake, presumably because city, county or sanatorium officials have not made a pretense of dragging for her. Mystery surrounds the death of the young woman, who had been a student nurse of the sanatorium for several years. Her home is in Richland Center, where her mother and stepfather live. She was to return there in a few months, after graduating as a trained nurse.

REPLY TO AUSTRIAN PROTEST DISPATCHED

United States Rejects Contentment That Exportation of War Supplies Violates Neutrality.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 11.—The American note rejecting the contention of the Austro-Hungarian government that the action of the United States in permitting the exportation of munitions of war to enemies of the German allies was in consonance with the definition of neutrality was on its way today to Vienna.

Ambassador Penfield, to whom the note was dispatched, probably will present it to the Austrian government tomorrow. The communication is in reply to the Austro-Hungarian note of June 29. The note, it is said, reaffirmed the position of the United States that international law has a right under international law to send supplies to belligerents, able to purchase and receive them.

KONKEL DEFEATS HILE IN SUPERIOR ELECTION

Second Time in Thirteen Months Present Mayor Has Faced Recall.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Superior, Wis., Aug. 11.—For the second time in a recall election with thirteen months Mayor J. E. Konkell defeated J. H. Hile, circuit court reporter for this state judicial circuit, carrying all the city precincts except six, and winning 2,534 to 2,076. Incompetency and refusal to enforce laws were allegations upon which recall petitions were based at both elections. Mayor Konkell won by a margin of 458 votes.

FOUR OF EASTLAND COMPANY INDICTED FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Bonds of $20,000 Filed by Each of the Officials and $10,000 for Peter Perin's Mother and Erickson.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Aug. 11.—Three indictments—one charging four men jointly with manslaughter and two others charging criminal carelessness—were voted Tuesday by the Cook county grand jury, which has been investigating the Eastland disaster.

The men named jointly in manslaughter charges are: W. H. Hull, vice president and general manager of the St. Joseph-Chicago Steamship company; W. C. Steele, secretary-treasurer same company; Ray W. Davis, assistant secretary-treasurer same company; George F. Arnold, president same company.

Those indicted for criminal carelessness are: Capt. Harry Pederson, who was in charge of the death ship; Joseph Erickson, the engineer of the Eastland; Bonds were filed at $20,000 each for the four officials and $10,000 for Peter Perin's mother and Erickson. The last two named are charged with criminal carelessness and the officials with manslaughter. Separate indictments were returned against the captain and the engineer, while the four officials were named in a joint indictment.

TAXATION BODY MEETS AT FAIR

National Conference in Annual Meeting at San Francisco Discusses Important Questions.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
San Francisco, Aug. 11.—The question whether public utilities should be assessed for taxation by public service commissions occupied some of the attention of the National Conference on Taxation here today. F. N. Fletcher, of Reno, Nevada, a former member of the Nevada State Tax Commission, sketched the development of the public utilities, alluding to "the startling efficiency now shown as compared with the previous wasteful individual effort" and said that this efficiency was carrying with it enormous profits to which the public had paid little attention.

He dismissed the suggestion that public utilities under strict regulation should not be taxed at all by noting that in such case a part of the public would be benefitted at the expense of a larger part not served by the utility and the loss in taxes would have to be made up by other property on a wholly unfair proportion. The same reasoning he contended would apply to municipal ownership under which a cheapening of rates to a small portion of the community would give them an unfair advantage over the taxpayers generally. "No one is injured by keeping the tax on," he said, "but always the many are injured for the benefit of the few by taking it off."

He asserted then that the public utilities should be taxed, the question arises as to the amount of the tax and whether the valuation should be the same for tax as for rate purposes. No difficulty arises in the trained mind in ascribing a different value for each purpose, as rates are largely based on what is put into the property as investment while taxes are assessed on what is taken out as income. One is an investment value, the other an income or market value. Under constant and proper regulation the two would tend to come together as the fixing of rates is the chief factor in the market value of a utility."

He held that as the questions require expert analysis of facts and as the same set of facts must be used for both rate and tax purposes, the same expert body of public service commissioners could well determine both issues.

CLEAR MYSTERY OF BANK ROBBERY WHEN TELLER CONFESSES

Employee of Cedar Rapids, Ia., Bank Admits Taking $20,000 to Pay Land Speculation Debts.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Cedar Rapids, Ia., Aug. 11.—The police and officials of the Cedar Rapids National bank, which was robbed a week ago today of $20,000, announced today that the mystery of the robbery had been cleared by the confession of Leo Perrin, paying teller, that he had taken the money to settle debts incurred in land speculation.

Perrin has not been arrested. Of the $20,000 taken from the bank, $10,000 has been recovered. The police said that $3,000 was found sewed in a sofa pillow at the home of Perrin's mother, and $2,000 was turned over by an attorney to whom the paying teller had given it as a retainer.

According to the announcement of bank officials and the police, a final attempt was made to get the money from Perrin's story that he was confronted by a lone robber in the bank last Wednesday, forced to hand over the money at the point of a revolver, and then locked in the vault. It was said that when Perrin was confronted with new evidence, he broke down and confessed. He is said to have explained that his salary amounted to but $1,500 a year while interest on his debts, amounting to about $21,000, reached $1,200.

It was rumored here today that a banker in a small town had been implicated by Perrin.

INSANITY DEFENSE OF ALLEGED FORGER

Prominent Green Bay Hotel Keeper Gains Immunity and Then Is Released on Second Warrent.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Green Bay, Aug. 11.—When the case of the state against C. E. Jung, prominent insurance agent and hotel keeper charged with issuing a forged note in December, 1914, was called in municipal court today, a special plea of insanity was interposed on behalf of the defendant.

As the jury was about to be selected to try the case, District Attorney Davis announced he was not prepared to go to trial with Jung, pleading insanity as his defense, and he moved the dismissal of that case and immediately caused the arrest of Jung on another warrant, alleging forging of a note for $194 in February, 1915. His preliminary hearing will be held August 20.

Jung was remanded to jail in default of $5,000. His alleged forgeries amount to several hundred dollars, it is said.

HAVE MODERN EVE AT SOLDIER'S CAMP

Soldiers Believed to Have Stripped Painted Woman and Ordered Her From Camp.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 11.—An escapade of a party of boisterous soldiers in the federal military camp near Sparta, is believed by Sheriff Boss of Monroe county to be the foundation of the story of a "Modern Eve" wandering about the woods resplendent in a smile and lace cap.

A lewd woman had been frequenting the camp and two weeks ago a party of soldiers is believed to have stripped her and ordered her from the place, according to the sheriff. She hastened to cover her borrow articles of clothing, but before reaching the house she was seen by some persons. She promised to leave the county and has not been seen since. There was no arrest and none is contemplated.

LARGE FORCE IS LANDED AT STRAITS

BRITISH TROOPS ARRIVE FOR A BIG OFFENSIVE MOVEMENT TO COUNTERACT GERMAN SUCCESSES.

GERMANS NEAR KOVNO

Reported That Russians Are Evacuating Vilna and That Kovno is Now in Grave Danger of Being Captured.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Constantinople, Aug. 11.—Enver Pasha, the Turkish minister of war, declared today that according to his information the entente allies in their latest operations at the Dardanelles, had landed three divisions of troops, comprising about 50,000 men. The losses among them, however, he asserted, had been heavy.

British Troops Landed

London, Aug. 11.—Recognition of imperative importance to the allies of forcing the Dardanelles as the shortest road to retrieving Russian reverses and regaining the initiative now in the hands of Germany, is demonstrated amply by the sudden landing of British forces in the vicinity of Karachall, on north of the Gulf of Saros, and the resumption of the offensive both at the southern end of the Gallipoli Peninsula and north of Gaba Tepe.

Positions Strengthened

The Australians and New Zealanders recently have strengthened their positions at Gaba Tepe. The new landing place at the Gulf of Saros, being on the flank of the German line, if developed would menace the strong Turkish defense across the neck of the peninsula.

Coming at this time when there is so much discussion whether Germany will attempt to crush Serbia preparatory to linking forces with Turkey by way of Bulgaria, these developments at the Dardanelles assume special importance. As yet there is no proof that the Germans have withdrawn or are preparing to withdraw any considerable proportions of their army from the eastern front. On the contrary the offensive which led to the fall of Warsaw has not been relaxed and the position of the retreating Russians is in a state of confusion.

To Evacuate Vilna?

Partial dismantling of Vilna preparatory to evacuation is reported from Petrograd, which is somewhat puzzling to British commentators. On the one hand the Russians assert they have repulsed German attacks around the fortress of Kovno, which is sixty miles north of Vilna. The Zeppeins reported yesterday over Holland sailing in direction of the Scottish coast, have not been heard from.

Take Vistula Stronghold

Berlin, Aug. 11.—The German war office announced today the occupation of the fortress of Beniaminow, which lies to the east of Novogorodsk, the Russian stronghold on the Vistula, northeast of Warsaw.

DARDANELLES TROOPERS FIGHTING HORRID BLES AS WELL AS THE TURKS

London, Aug. 11 (By mail).—The Allied forces in the Dardanelles are not only fighting Turks but a formidable army of flies.
The flies are even worse than the Turks, writes a correspondent from Gallipoli.
Food is black with flies the instant it is brought to light and sleep is almost impossible, due to the constant buzzing attacks of the winged enemy. The worst of the pest is the house fly, which swarms in great numbers. The sweets of army stores are pounced on greedily and it is only by dexterous and long practiced maneuvers that a soldier is able to beat the flies to the extent of it.

Midsummer in Gallipoli finds the soldier wearing khaki drill shirts, trousers that end just above the knees. Cigarettes on the peninsula are an absolute luxury, according to the correspondent. The soldiers are willing to pay a heavy price for cigarettes sold by small Greek "canteens," behind the Allied lines. The cigarettes are made in Germany, but the troops smoke them just the same.

ARTHUR B. DOE IN STIRRING WAR TALK

YOUNG OXFORD STUDENT RELATES EXPERIENCES BEFORE LARGE AUDIENCE AT GOLF CLUB.

DROVE WAR AMBULANCE

Lecture Tops Off Ideal Evening at Sinissippi Club House. After Six-Thirty Dinner and Dancing—Splendid Music.

Over a hundred members and guests at the Sinissippi Golf club gathered at the club house last evening to enjoy a delightful entertainment after an elaborate dinner. The dinner was served at six-thirty on the veranda, after which some dancing for a short while. Roy Carter furnished the music during the dinner hour with several beautiful vocal selections, playing own accompaniment. Everyone gathered in the club house about eight o'clock, where chairs were arranged for all to hear Mr. Doe.

Spent Six Months in Red Cross. Many Janesville people are either acquainted with Mr. Doe or his parents, and his lecture really started as soon as he arrived at the club house. He primarily went to England as a student at Oxford University, being sent there through the Rhode's scholarship offer.

"When the war broke out," said Mr. Doe, "the under-graduate classes at the university simply melted away. There were not more than thirty left by the first of October, out of a class of 220. And out of this thirty, twelve were Americans of whom I was one. Most of the Englishmen had preferred their services to Brandt Whitlock at Brussels. However, I went to Boulogne and offered my services to the English Red Cross society. This was not a part of the army, and under the command of the army, and an entirely separate institution."

Mr. Doe then told of the English hospital and system of taking care of the thousands of patients brought to Boulogne daily, of which system he was a part. This hospital is so efficient that there are over 5000 beds empty all of the time.

Mr. Doe joined the civilian service of Red Cross and was assigned to driving a war ambulance. However, this experience was too tame at this point, where there was no shell fire and a simple routine of taking the wounded from the hospital to the ship all day long. So at the first opportunity, the speaker left and took up the work at and near Ypres. It was during the second battle of Ypres, that he experienced the most hazardous adventures.

Death Roll Heavy. "During the second battle of Ypres more men were killed than it is possible to imagine, in the short space of time," said the speaker. "There were fifty motor ambulances and within a week we moved over 4000 men. The Canadians suffered most in this awful slaughter, their casualties reaching 7,500 during the seven days. It was necessary to keep this from the people in Britain for some time, for fear of discouraging enlistments, so the casualty lists are delayed, but not concealed."

"The battle, which lasted for a week before the town of Ypres, exhausted both sides that for two days after neither side fired a shot. It was the bloodiest, and most awful battle of the war."

"And the strain of battle was not all on the soldiers in the trench, for the surgeons, orderlies, motor drivers and nurses all feel the effect of the heavy work. The motor drivers averaged 420 miles per day and it was nothing for the drivers to become so exhausted that their heavy trucks would wobble through the roads, bouncing from side to side, and back, then finally halting up at the side of the road, where the driver would snatch a minutes sleep and then get on with his work for the entire week with no sleep at all to speak of." Here Mr. Doe explained the hospital system of the English Red Cross.

Base is Railroad Center. There is first of all a hospital, situated at a railroad center. This is a large hospital for the care of all patients and is located at a very convenient place. The French base is located at Paris. Another for the English is located at Boulogne.

The next division is the rail head or Clearing Hospital. This is also situated at a railroad center, and the road head. Here the wounded are brought in during the night and the next thing the place is cleared. The motor ambulances come to it and carry the men back to the base hospital. Next you come to the first aid post, or dressing station, where the wounded are given a first aid treatment and their injuries are temporarily dressed. These are the real dangerous posts, for the enemy is constantly shelling behind the lines, simply on general principles and very often one of these posts are blown to pieces, killing and wounding many.

Trenches Built Zig Zag. The modern trench system is different from any prepared heretofore. The earth is thrown up from behind the place, at which the men are to stand and a bank is made before them, supported by a row of posts as high as the men's heads. This bank is about three feet thick, to a thickness of about ten feet, and in front of this are placed evergreen boughs, through which the men can peer and fire. The old loop holes are done away with, on account of its danger, for the enemy can pick the men off as soon as they try to aim through the hole. Between the posts and bank is placed a heavy wire mesh, which serves to hold up the dirt and debris. The real trench is behind the men, so that all water that should collect, goes into this ditch and prevents the necessity of the men standing in the pools. These trenches are from 30 to 150 yards from the enemies, and extend back of all of 500 yards. However, the trench is so shallow it is a distance of 1500 yards to walk to the rear with wounded men.

And right there is one of the many dangerous parts of the Red Cross work. The orders are sent to the trench here at regular intervals to pick up the men who have been hit. They are frequently killed. Seven were killed in one day during Mr. Doe's tour. The men are picked up, they are forced to pick up the men, load them onto a stretcher, carry them through the difficult crooked trench to the rear under heavy fire all of the time. Not that the men are being aimed at in particular, but stray bullets are no scarcity in this spot.

Let us trace a wounded man's route," said Mr. Doe. "First he must lie in the trench, perhaps an hour, until the orderly makes his regular round. He may, if he is able give himself a first aid treatment with the bandage which is sewed to the inside of his uniform. "He is then taken to the first aid post, which follows the army wherever they go and here he must wait his turn, according to the severity of his wound, because to get to them all at once is a hopeless task. Then he must lie in wait all day before he can be taken to the clearing post, for it is too dangerous for the motor ambulance to make the trip during the day open to shell fire. Not because I think the Germans would purposely fire on a red cross ambulance, but at a distance of twelve miles, the gunners know that where there is a Red Cross ambulance there are sure to be troops and consequently fires."

"The ride from the first aid post to the clearing post is very hard on the men, and many die from the shock of their wounds. Not because they have had no rest, to speak of, since they were hit. Men who have a foot or arm blown off, very seldom live, and a man who has a leg blown off never survives, for he cannot stand the shock. Many have them amputated and recover, but not those whose members are literally blown off. Then too, men are forced at times to take the long ride with broken bones, which the surgeons have been unable to put splints upon and the agony they are forced to go through here is beyond human imagination. During this ride that the wounded man, as a rule, experience their most excruciating pain and suffering. The German bullets in the road are frequently hit, for the only light the drivers have is the occasional explosion of a shell, which lights up the surrounding territory, and the gunners, the only lights shelling the enemy. This is also a dangerous ride, although not as dangerous as it might be during the day."

"The wounded man arrives at the clearing post, he is given the needed care in a very efficient manner, and then taken to Boulogne. On this point, in case of the wounded man, the man is sent home to England. At London, an able-bodied man is a very uncomfortable being, no matter whether he is an Englishman or American, or what nationality."

be taken to the clearing post, for it is too dangerous for the motor ambulance to make the trip during the day open to shell fire. Not because I think the Germans would purposely fire on a red cross ambulance, but at a distance of twelve miles, the gunners know that where there is a Red Cross ambulance there are sure to be troops and consequently fires."

"The ride from the first aid post to the clearing post is very hard on the men, and many die from the shock of their wounds. Not because they have had no rest, to speak of, since they were hit. Men who have a foot or arm blown off, very seldom live, and a man who has a leg blown off never survives, for he cannot stand the shock. Many have them amputated and recover, but not those whose members are literally blown off. Then too, men are forced at times to take the long ride with broken bones, which the surgeons have been unable to put splints upon and the agony they are forced to go through here is beyond human imagination. During this ride that the wounded man, as a rule, experience their most excruciating pain and suffering. The German bullets in the road are frequently hit, for the only light the drivers have is the occasional explosion of a shell, which lights up the surrounding territory, and the gunners, the only lights shelling the enemy. This is also a dangerous ride, although not as dangerous as it might be during the day."

"The wounded man arrives at the clearing post, he is given the needed care in a very efficient manner, and then taken to Boulogne. On this point, in case of the wounded man, the man is sent home to England. At London, an able-bodied man is a very uncomfortable being, no matter whether he is an Englishman or American, or what nationality."

Cannot Realize Magnitude. "The people here cannot realize the magnitude of the task and the effort which is being made," said Mr. Doe, "for twice our division was mentioned in Sir John's dispatches as having done extra well under the strain at Ypres. "They do and they are anxious to get back to the trenches," Mr. Doe said. "They do and they are because they have to. But when they say they want to get back they are not for their hearts they know they do not. However, they know, if they once admit that they do not like it, they are whipped, and they whip themselves to say, 'yes, it is a terrible condition they get into when they are home for a furlough. All believe in the saying, 'That the pitcher will some day take one too many trips to the well.'"

Mr. Doe explained the shells used by the armies. There are two kinds used mostly. They are either shrapnel or high explosive shells. A large shell filled with small iron pellets, with a time fuse on the inside which times its explosion. It is used to kill men and certainly in the form of the duty in trench warfare. The high explosive is a much larger shell about three feet long and over a foot wide. These, sent by the Germans, are the most terrible. Mr. Doe said, "for the allies have the advantage of the side, and that is the reason the allies have never used it, for they knew the Germans were prepared for it. Some of it is shot through long tunnels, and being a heavy chlorine-bromide gas, floats along the ground until it strikes a depression and then rolls into the trenches, where the men are. The trenches have respirators, which they soak in the antidote and the gas is as ineffective as any air, forming common salt on the outside of the mask, as the chemical is called 'phosgene'."

In drawing his talk to a close Mr. Doe told of an experience, which was the most horrible of all, and was a narrow escape from death. "I was in a trench, looking out from the front and stopped in a little village to buy some refreshments. I was sitting outside in my motor ambulance, and not a word was said to me. Above us, finally it floated off toward the German lines and I thought no more of it. The officers came out, climbed into the ambulance and we started on a pretty good run of speed. My motorcycle orderly came up to me and said, 'You had better slow up for the major is right behind us and you are expected to stop here.' I slowed down, and had not gone thirty feet, when a bomb fell about fifty feet in front of us, killing fifteen and wounding thirty. We picked up some of the wounded. The women were completely torn to pieces by the shrapnel and seven soldiers were killed. Six horses were so badly hurt that they had to be shot. The major came up and said, 'Do you mind, I almost shoved you into that,' and I said, 'you saved my life by being behind me.'"

After his talk, which held everyone spellbound throughout, Mr. Doe gave another small lecture to an interested crowd, which quickly gathered around him. The interest which he created was the most intense and personal, as he 'brought home' to the listeners that all were spellbound for several minutes after the talk had ceased. The Golf club is certainly to be congratulated on having the honor of obtaining Mr. Doe to talk, for he is a very fluent and pleasing speaker, as well as having a very interesting subject.

OLD COUPLE ESCAPES SUFFOCATION BY GAS

Guests at Bismark Hotel Regain Consciousness After Morning Accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schenburen, an aged couple of York, Nebraska, had an extremely narrow escape this morning from asphyxiation by gas in their room at the Bismark hotel. Both were brought to consciousness by a physician after much effort and the condition of Mrs. Schenburen was most dangerous than that of her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Schenburen are relatives of Mrs. Teubert and were staying in one of the back rooms of the hotel. In getting up this morning, Mrs. Schenburen accidentally turned on the gas in a combination electric and gas fixture. The gas switch is but half an inch from the electric light button and he accidentally turned the gas switch on thinking it was the electric light. Three hours later Mrs. Teubert discovered the gas-laden room and found the two occupants unconscious from the escaping gas. A physician was at once called and both were given treatment to take the fumes from their bodies.

CRONIN LOSES SUIT AGAINST INTERURBAN

Judge Grimm Finds That Railroad Companies Have Not Encroached Upon His Property.

The action of Lawrence J. Cronin against the Janesville Traction company and Rockford & Interurban Railway company, has been decided adversely to Cronin, by Judge Grimm. The case was tried June 19, and findings of fact and conclusions of law were filed today in the circuit court. In the trial Mr. Cronin contended that when the Janesville Traction company changed the location of its tracks upon Beloit avenue three or more years ago, it filled up the street and built an embankment on his property, and that said defendants had ever since used the tracks, and findings of fact and conclusions of law were filed today in the circuit court. In the trial Mr. Cronin contended that when the Janesville Traction company changed the location of its tracks upon Beloit avenue three or more years ago, it filled up the street and built an embankment on his property, and that said defendants had ever since used the tracks, and findings of fact and conclusions of law were filed today in the circuit court.

He claimed that the fence on the westerly line of his property, just south of the Spring Brook bridge, is on the true street line. He and other witnesses testified that the fence had been in its present location for forty years or more, and that the railway companies, in making the embankment as a bed for their tracks, had paid no attention to the fence or the ditches alongside on his land. These claims were denied by the railway companies. They offered evidence to show that the street at the point in question is legally sixty-six feet in width; that when George L. and Sarah H. Carrington platted Willow Grange addition the street was designated as four rods in width, the center line of the street being the easterly boundary of their land. Later they acquired the property on the east side of the street just opposite to Willow Grange addition, August 21, 1895, they conveyed this land to Lawrence J. Cronin, by metes and bounds, making the Janesville and Beloit road, now Beloit avenue, not the old fence, the westerly boundary. The railway companies further claimed that when they came to lay their tracks they found that the fence of plaintiff encroached upon the street in some places several feet, and that in laying the tracks and operating over them they have not injured any of his land.

Judge Grimm decided that the fence in question encroaches upon the street and that neither of the defendants is occupying or using any manner encroaching upon the lands of the plaintiff outside of the true street line, nor has it trespassed upon or damaged his property as alleged in his complaint, which was ordered dismissed with costs. Edward H. Ryan appeared for the plaintiff, and Thos. S. Nolan for the defendants.

FAIR GROUNDS ARE CLOSELY GUARDED

One MBan Arrested—Special Police Are Taking Pains to Avoid Disorder.

With the first day of the fair over and no robberies or thefts reported, the Janesville police and their special aides "exerted even more efforts to protect the public, knowing that much more trouble would be present from today on. One arrest was made at the fair grounds, and this was a man known from last year's experience to be an expert in the short change game. He was taken to the Chicago train, with the usual orders to stay away. Two drunks were arrested but were released this morning, not being taken to court.

Two regular policemen were stationed in the stands and will be kept there during the week. A squad of special policemen patrol the grounds. Mixed with them Chief Obenpau and several plain clothes men mingled in the crowds, but no complaints or trace of pickpockets were received.

The station man flying trip to the residence of Dr. Guy Waide on Milton avenue, where the housemaid reported a burglar had broken into the house, and from the house made the trip, searched the house and the grounds around, but found no sign of a robbery or was there anything missing from the house. Neighbors watch the house until the arrival of the police, and from the report received no one was seen to leave the house.

A PAIR OF SLIPPERS

By ALICE EDWARDS.

Timothy Drew went up the three flights of stairs to his room and opened the door. The windows were wide open and the curtains were blowing. He had met Mrs. Wicks scurrying through the upper hall and he had thrown her a cheery word of greeting.

He stood in the doorway and sniffed suspiciously; then he strode down the hall and captured his landlady at the head of the stairs.

"Beg pardon, ma'am," he said in a hearty voice. "I've a suspicion that you don't like tobacco smoke."

"Wh—at?" gasped Mrs. Wicks. "I don't mind smoking a bit. Why, my husband smokes like a regular chimney. What makes you think I don't like your smoking?"

"Because I thought you'd been sprinkling perfume around or burning incense—or something. I can't say that I object to it, only I guess I'll just stick to tobacco smoke, if you don't mind."

"Yes, sir," groaned Mrs. Wicks, and vanished down the dark stairway.

Capt. Timothy Drew returned to his room and lighted his pipe. He sat by the window looking out toward the wharf, where his work lay. He was captain of a small freight and passenger steamer which plied daily between the city and a smaller town farther down the sound. He might have slept aboard the Pennroyal, but he chose to spend his sleeping hours away from the scene of his day's work. He merely slept at Mrs. Wicks'. Now he went out to a restaurant for his dinner and returned home at eleven o'clock.

As he lighted the gas in his room he once more sniffed the air suspiciously.

"Humph!" he frowned, looking around. "Smells like violets. I wonder if any inquisitive housemaid has been poking around among my poor belongings—well, I'll be blessed!"

He stared down at a pair of diminutive bedroom slippers—gray suede with frivolous pink pompons on each toe. They were under his bed—his bed!

Tossing his hat and stick down on the table, he gathered up the slippers and put them into his pocket. Softly he tiptoed downstairs to the basement, where he knew he would find Mrs. Wicks.

At the foot of the upper staircase he met the pretty girl he had saved from a fall on the stairs the previous day. She was coming up and he hastily stood aside to let her pass.

Slowly enough, Captain Drew went down the remainder of the way. He was thinking of the girl. She was unusually attractive, he thought. He really didn't care much for girls, but this one—He tapped at the door of the basement sitting room.

"Come in," yawned Mrs. Wicks. "Oh, it's you, Captain Drew," she gasped apologetically. "I hope everything's all right."

He took out the frivolous slippers and held them for her inspection, but a sound at the door had sent her scared glance over his shoulder.

"I found these slippers under my bed," he boomed in his big voice. "What were they doing there, Mrs. Wicks?"

"Mrs. Wicks," followed a crisp voice at the door. "I found a man's coat and stick in my room."

Timothy Drew whirled around at the sound of the voice. It was the girl he had met on the stairs. She was looking puzzled now. Her glance caught the slippers in his hands.

"Why, those are my slippers," she said in a surprised tone.

"And that's my hat and stick," he retorted.

"I found them in my room," said the girl.

"I found the slippers under my bed," he declared. With one accord they faced the wretched Mrs. Wicks. She was bowed in despairing grief over the discovery of her double dealing. She sobbed a sad story—a conventional tale of woe, interspersed with information concerning gas bills and coal bills and vacant large rooms and overfull small rooms, and finally confessed she had yielded to the temptation of renting the same room to two lodgers—one a day lodger and the other a night tenant. She declared that she had wrecked her nervous system trying to prevent a meeting between these two. She told how she had bundled Captain Drew's belongings out in time to make place for Miss Moore's pretty things when that sleepy young woman should come up the stairs at half-past seven, and vice-versa.

"And now I shall lose two lodgers," she mourned at last.

Timothy Drew's blue eyes twinkled with mirth. Hester Moore's eyes bubbled over with glee at the funny situation.

"Sort of a Box and Cox affair," grinned Captain Drew at last.

"I never heard of them gentlemen," averred Mrs. Wicks, dolefully.

"Well, Mrs. Wicks, I think you'll have to put Miss Moore in your best suite tonight, and tomorrow we'll talk matters over." And to Mrs. Wicks' delight it was settled thus.

Ever afterward Mrs. Wicks referred to it as a "Hijine" romance, for it ended in the wedding of the bluff young captain and the pretty telegraph operator.

"CABIRIA."

A Great Military Film Spectacle. At a time when this country is stirred by the great war in Europe, it should interest all to see how battles were fought in the third century. B. C. In "Cabiria" the colossal photo-drama by Gabriele d'Annunzio which is to be shown at the Apollo theatre for two shows Thursday there are many battles, which for limitless ferocity and desperation thrill the beholders with mingled awe and horror, awe at the massive agencies of destruction employed, horror at the relentless carnage which takes place. There is the destruction of the Roman fleet which is realistic beyond description. The ships are burned to the water's edge and death is dealt out unsparring. Similarly with the battle scenes where the combatants give and take no quarter. Hannibal's crossing of the Alps is wonderfully impressive as a military achievement. This operation is assigned to be one of the greatest of all time. It is interesting to contemplate the enormous material he availed himself of in that memorable attempt to penetrate the very heart of the Roman Empire. Men and animals were sacrificed profusely and indiscriminately in crossing the Alps alone, having cost him ten thousand of his soldiers.

Vaudeville Starts Friday. Because "Cabiria" will be shown Thursday, the vaudeville program at the Apollo will start Friday with a very good bill.

A Japanese party was given last night in Academy Hall by George Radant and R. Hutchinson. The hall was prettily decorated in Japanese lanterns and in one corner two Japanese girls sold ice tea. The troubador orchestra furnished good music and the party was pronounced a success by all who attended.

Earliest English Surname. History shows that surnames did not come into general and hereditary use in England until after the Norman conquest, when the upper classes were first known by the names of their lands. The lower orders took the names of trades, birds, animals and various other objects in art and nature. We are told that the earliest English surname is "Hatta."

GROUND FOR SUSPICION.

In view of the condition of the treasury which convicts the democrats of incompetence, it is hardly surprising that there should be serious suspicion in some quarters that the administration is preparing to take steps to hide the evidence. What could be easier than to intervene in Mexico, make such intervention the occasion of greatly increased expenditures for the army and navy, to explain to the people that the sale of bonds and the increase of taxes are necessitated by the military operations and thus to blind many at least of the voters to the fact that the administration had emptied the treasury before it had expended anything unusual for the army and navy? How many of the voters will reflect that had it not been for the unreasonable hostility of the Wilson administration to Huerta thousands of American and hundreds of thousands of Mexican lives would have been saved and there would have been no necessity for intervention in Mexico? How many voters will reflect that every man competent by training and experience and by knowledge of Mexican conditions to advise the president urged him to recognize Huerta and warned him to put no faith in the insurgents whether they were Carranzistas or Villistas? How many voters will remember that nothing but failure of the Underwood tariff bill to produce revenue and reckless and unimportant expenditures by an administration democratic in both the White House and congress emptied the treasury? On the answer to these questions will depend the verdict of the voters in November, 1916.

THE GOVERNOR FIRM.

Governor Philipp has let it be plainly understood that he intends to see to it that there is a decided cut in the various appropriations for state institutions, particularly the university and normal schools. It was a clever ruse to ask for a million or so more than they had two years ago and then permit the finance committee to cut them down, make a loud cry about how they were economizing and even with the cut being way ahead of what they actually needed. It might have been successful if there were not watchful eyes at work in Madison that peer into every appropriation to see if it is needed. Governor Philipp does not wish to cripple the institutions of learning of the state, but he does demand that they economize and place their affairs upon a business basis. He has shown his determination in his veto of certain measures which he did not consider proper and the state has been benefited by his determination. He is just as firm in his determination relative to the necessity of cutting down the appropriations that are not really needed as he was relative to the Stempfer bill, and the legislature will find it out before they are through. The "Tax-eaters" continue their tactics but the people have a governor who is watching after their interests and they may rest contented that all that can be done will be to prevent a wholesale raid on the state treasury.

THE FAIR.

Never in the history of Janesville has there been brought together such a display of fine stock and other exhibits as are now assembled at the Park association grounds. It is well worth a visit of inspection and it is to be hoped that before the week is over the majority of citizens will have paid the Janesville fair a visit. From an educational point of view it can not be surpassed. It gives the visitor a better idea of the resources of the county than could otherwise be obtained. The Janesville fair is to be an annual institution and it deserves the patronage of Janesville people.

Divorce educational and liquor interests from politics and then we will have something to brag of in Wisconsin. It is all right to attack the corporations in the interests of the "Deer People," but the combination of liquor and education has wrought more material damage to the taxpayers' pocketbook this last legislative session than anything else.

These summer playgrounds' introduction of tennis as one of the sports to be enjoyed by old and young has done much to re-popularize the game that long held sway in the favor of those not strenuous enough for other sports. But talking about that it is strenuous enough at that to suit all requirements.

Golf is rapidly taking the place of baseball. The fight between the various leagues, the lack of spirit shown by some of the players who seek only the dollars and cents obtainable in the game, has done much to depreciate the real value of the sport so long characteristically American.

Madison is patriotic to say the least. They realize that the university makes the city and when the professors are hit by the wave of tax reduction that threatens their salary list they howl, and consequently Madison thinks the governor is a real mean man.

It is a long road that has no turning and perhaps now the Germans have conquered Warsaw and started to Germany Poland, the Russian forces which eluded them may turn in the road and return to surprise their Teutonic friends by a flying visit.

It is to be hoped the governor will have the courage to veto measures carrying appropriations that are unjust. No matter if the legislature stays in session all fall let us have one governor who has the conviction of his campaign pledges so fixed that he will do as his conscience dictates.

If enough Mexicans manage to slip across the border to give the United States regulars who have been stationed on the border for so many months one first-class scrap, they will not feel as though they had been wasting time.

The "Tax-eaters" object to the governor seeking to cut down appropriations. They have so long had their own way in handling the state finances that they can not understand how anyone dares to block any of their plans.

Mary Garden has selected Janesville as the location for her Thanksgiving night concert. It is to be hoped that Janesville will reciprocate and greet Mary Garden as she deserves to be met—with open arms.

A. B. C. diplomacy might be tried on Europe after the results in Mexico are definitely known. Thus far it appears that the only real result was the expulsion of "A" from Mexico City "for cause."

The ocean bathing—on this side of the Atlantic—is just as popular as ever, but across the pond the reports of the bathing are usually confined to the sinking of submarines and similar ships.

Fair week means fair week. Weather and otherwise. The exhibit at the Park Association grounds is well worth visiting from the fat hogs down to the dainty lingerie.

Thus far the allies have not yet captured Constantinople. However, Italy has now sent a half million or so soldiers over there and we may expect something definite shortly.

Chicago has long bragged of its summer climate, but as far as can be learned it has rained just as often in Chicago as elsewhere this past two months.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE.

Alack!
Hie thee hence, thou villain,
Or many crimes upon thee
Hie thee hence, thou robber,
Thou fiend and burglar bold!
He looked at her wistfully, yearningly.

It was one in the afternoon, an hour after noon, and the young man streamed fearlessly into the room on the Louis XIII furniture, Ignatz VI carpet, on him and her.

She moved about lightly, airily, with infinite grace, and his eyes followed each movement with unspeakable desire.

"What would I not give," he thought, "to clasp your delicate form to me for just a moment? But alas, you are not for me!"

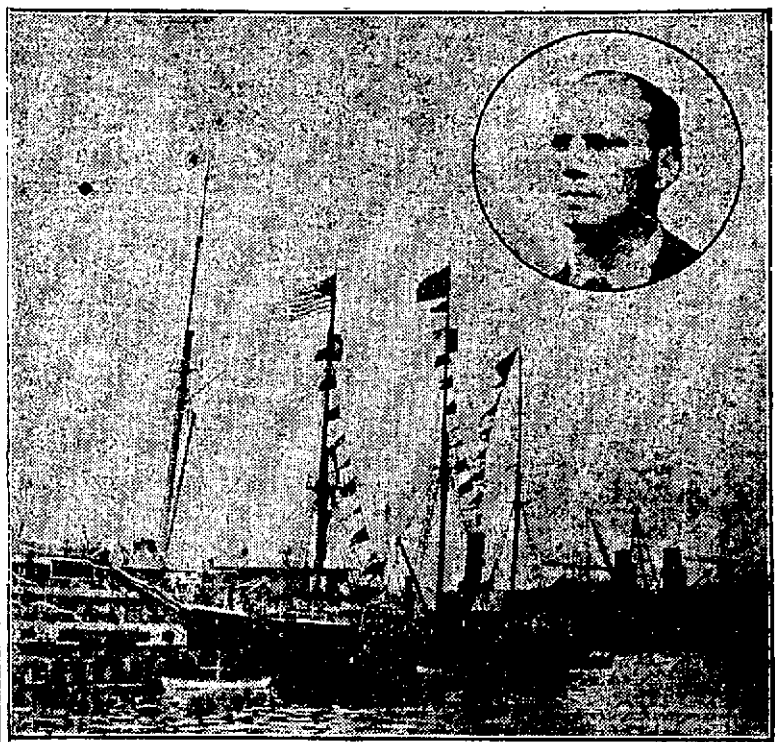

As if unconscious of his presence, she began to sing, low, yet ah, how sweetly!

"You beautiful creature!" he thought wildly.

And (for he was agile cat) he jumped up on the sewing machine to get a better look, though he knew from bitter experience that the canary's cage was out of his reach.

Crocker Expedition Back From the Frozen North

THE DIANA.
(Mr. Ekblaw.)

"True viking's sons, they have started forth
To find a land in the frozen north—
A land that is fresh from the hand of God.
Where never the foot of man has trod.
A land hemmed in by the ice and snow.
A land that the seal and walrus know.
The home of the arctic fox and hare,
The trackless haunt of the polar bear.
A land where the moon and northern lights
Make brilliant as day the six-month nights;
Which, lit by the rays of the midnight sun,
Gleams white when the winter night is done."

—thus sang the poet, and the Brooklyn navy yard resounded with cheers as the good ship Diana with the Crocker Land expedition aboard, steamed out into the East river late in the afternoon of July 2, 1913.

Now, at the end of more than two years of battling against the Northland's terrible odds, this brave little party, of which Donald B. McMillan is at the head, is planning to return home. True, they have not found Admiral Peary's "Crocker Land," but they have at least proven that there is no such country—they have succeeded in the one fundamental object of the journey, "that the world might know just one thing more."

This month, members of the party are "packing" for the homecoming. Much exploring of great scientific value has been carried on during the past few months.

In letters to friends in the United States, W. Elmer Ekblaw, one of the scientists with the expedition, gives some side lights on life in the Land of the Midnight Sun that are highly interesting. Some extracts from these letters are quoted:

"Up here is atrocious, hazardous and eventful, but I imagine there isn't a happier, jollier people on earth than these Eskimos who have such hard conditions to face and so many dangers threatening them constantly. They are all fatalists, and while life is joyous to them, death apparently has no terrors. They are much like children in many ways, but capable, self-reliant, and resourceful with a sort of instinctive knowledge when they are out on the trail."

"Two of the Eskimos who went bear hunting in Melville Bay some three weeks ago, were carried out on a field of ice when it broke away and are now undoubtedly lost. Last year three hunters were thus carried out, and after twenty-three days on an iceberg, during which time they used up their sledges for fuel, ate all their dogs but three, and cut their long hair to put in their boots to keep from freezing their feet, they came back safely."

"That new Remington high-power rifle is all to the good. I've carried it with me on at least 1,500 miles of sledging over all kinds of ice, and it has stood the racket splendidly. I have shot two polar bears with it—the only bears yet killed by members of our expedition—and five musk oxen, among the game I have hunted, and one shot has done the work for each. It shoots hard and accurately enough for any game, I believe. As yet I have had no chance at walrus, but I am confident that I shall need no better arm for them. The Eskimos admire the rifle very much, and the Remington shotgun worked like a charm every time I took it out, even at 35 degrees below zero. The little twenty-two is the favorite small rifle in our armory. I shall have only warm words of approval for the Remington arms when I get back, and my well-worn .32 shall hang in my study always."

What Ye Editor Got.
They had a "Night Cap" social down at Conklin the other evening and the editor of the local paper was held out on the lawn, under the glow of Chinese lanterns, dim, 'tis true, but serving the purpose. Everything went well until near the close of the festivities, when a young riot was started by some cuss who mistook the editor, who was wandering around on the grounds with his night cap on, for one of the village belles and gave him a snuffing smack before he realized who it was.—Fawcett News.

Dead Give Away.
"Did you say these peas were from your own garden?" asked the sumner.
"Yes, siree," replied the farmer.
"Picked 'em myself early this morning."

"Is it necessary to sheet them before you pick 'em?" inquired the boarder, removing a piece of solder from between his teeth.

In summer we long for the days in the fall when the heat and the dust have departed; the time when the swarming of flies will have ceased, and the ice on the lake is well started. We long for the crack of the fire in the grate and the glare of the homely baseburner; the time when the odors from kitchens suggest the season of griddle and turner. We long for the day when the mercury says that the temperature's down below freezing; when the frost puts a crimp in the suffering and tears that come with hay fever and sneezing. "No," replied the truthful editor, "for there will be no grumpy father to come home and make everyone miserable by his kicking over trifles and swearing at matters in general. There will be no mother to scold her from morning to night for wasting time, merely because she wants to be married. There will be no big brother to abuse her for not doing half of his work, and no little brother to make enough noise to drive her crazy when her head aches. There won't be any younger sister to insist on reading some trashy novel while she does all the work. She will not have with me a home like she has been used to, not if I can help it."

"Oh, it was a perfectly lovely game," said she that evening to a male friend.

"That so? What was the score?"
"The score was: Detroit, two thousand and one; Cleveland, one thousand and one; and Cleveland, one hundred and ten million two thousand and one."

This is the score she had copied from the board on the back fence at the park:

Cleveland 1 0 0 0 2 0 0 1

AZTEC ASPHALT TOBE USED; CONTRACT TO FREEPORT FIRM

Council Affirms Contract, Obtained Through Low Bid Made by Gund-Graham Company—Council Proceedings.

The contract for the paving of Wisconsin and South Bluff streets with asphalt macadam was awarded to the Gund-Graham Construction company of Freeport, Ill., when the board of public works made a recommendation for the use of Aztec asphalt at the session held yesterday afternoon. All the members of the board voted for and the council affirmed the contract without a dissenting vote.

The unexpected turn of affairs resulted when the legal opinion of Attorney John Cunningham, acting as attorney during the absence of H. Dougherty, was filed with the recommendation of the board. Attorney Cunningham informed the board in the report that he had considered the specifications and advertisements that were made for the asphalt macadam paving. It was related that the notice called for bids with specifications and that no question was raised about any one brand if they met with the city's specifications. The conclusion was reached that all bids are on asphalt macadam and that the Aztec complies with your notice. Of course it would have to be furnished and put on, so as to comply with the specifications, and this would be true of the Aztec or any other. I do not think you could legally let the work under these bids and the notice, to any but the bidder furnishing the Aztec brand of asphalt at the lowest price," concluded the report.

Because of the legal status of the question, in that the city might become involved in a suit of the Gund-Graham company was not in the contract, the board of public works recommended that the contract be directed to execute the contract with the Gund-Graham company. Both the city councilmen Cummings and J. Goodman understood this morning that it was only because of the legal question that they voted for the Aztec asphalt and the contract went to the Gund-Graham company.

After the meeting of the board of public works, the council were called in session and their most important transaction was the passage of an ordinance for the elimination of all telephone and power poles in the downtown district. All poles on Milwaukee street between Division and Adams streets, Main street between Prospect and Adams streets, Lawrence avenue, River street between Milwaukee street and Pleasant street and North Academy street are to be taken out. The council refused to concede to the objections of the telephone company in not taking the poles off North Academy street, but laid the order down that they must be off the street, but that it would be possible to place them on the side of the street or in the alleys. The time limit was set for May first, 1916. With but a few minor changes the ordinance passed intact.

Mayor Paterson announced the appointments of E. H. Connell, W. S. Saxby, Henry Finnegan, Albert R. Gridley, Thomas Heller, Otto Elser, Thomas Delaney, Edward D. Tracy, Charles Harmon, C. B. Walker, M. D. Griffith, E. G. Coon, A. H. Klenan, Andrew Olson, W. P. Zabel and F. W. Becke as special police officers during the Janesville fair. The appointments were confirmed.

The petition of W. N. Benedict, W. H. Albert and E. E. Van Pool for the construction of a water main extension on Monroe street, in front of their property was received and filed.

Several notices to property owners to build standard cement sidewalks were based on the motion of Councilman Goodman.

Three hundred feet of patented sewer rods were ordered for the street department.

The report of Chief of Police Champion for last month was received, accepted and filed. On motion council adjourned until Friday afternoon.

ADJOURNMENT GRANTED IN DUDLEY ARSON CASE

An adjournment was taken this morning in the municipal court in the case of the State vs. Dr. Edward H. Dudley, charged with arson, for a period of one week, although it is possible the case will be tried before that time is up. This morning the Dudley case was set for preliminary examination and because of the fact that the attorney for the fire marshal department was engaged in the case at the present time and could not attend to the case in this city, the court granted an adjournment. M. G. Jeffris and District Attorney Dunwiddie appeared in the case. The defendant's attorney appeared in court this morning on a warrant charging reckless driving, and had his case set over for one week. No bail was required. The warrant has not been returned. Goodman appearing in court without the paper.

Warns of Leaks.

An automatic leak indicator for ships consists of a number of small cast iron boxes screwed to the bulkhead of each compartment and set at predetermined distances, one above another. In each box there is an electrical contrivance connected with an indicator-board either on the bridge or in some other convenient place. The board is fitted with a number of small glow lamps of different colors, and is connected with an alarm bell. When the water rises to the level of the lowest box, it makes an electrical contact by which the lamp corresponding to the height in the bulkhead that the box indicates is lighted, and so remains until the next box is reached by the water, when the second lamp is lighted. Meanwhile, the bell rings continuously until switched off.

Worth Remembering.

If you want to get a man's keenest attention, talk to him about something to eat or drink. If it is one of the dear sisters you are conversing with you will have to get your observations strongly concentrated upon babies or surgical operations.

WOMAN'S PAGE

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH E. CAMERON

COULD THIS BE DONE?

I have a vocational suggestion for a woman with certain rather rare and not by any means extraordinary gifts.

A few weeks ago a friend of mine in a letter to be trained by a man whose business it is to train dogs for hunting.

The dog has come back. He is not only well-trained for hunting, but he has also been disciplined out of his most trying puppy ways by this man. He was a very obstreperous puppy; he is now a very manageable young dog and will remain so until he is old and gray.

Why Not A Trainer For Obstreperous Children?

No, I am not advocating dog training as a feminine profession, but why shouldn't a woman who has the peculiar gifts which make one capable of training children set up as a child trainer and take obstreperous children to train?

We are coming to recognize that although nature always sends the love with the baby, she frequently omits to include the ability to manage the child. I know of more than one mother who, while she loves her child with all her heart, does not understand him or know how to manage him. Such a mother fluctuates between unreasoning strictness and over-indulgence. Her nagging, her impatience, the reaction of her nerves against the child's make him more and more difficult to manage as time goes on.

Now if a child like that could be turned over for two or three months to a complete child trainer who would study him, learn to understand him and sympathize with him, and at the same time put him under systematic discipline, think what it would mean for his mother and the child.

The Qualities She Must Have.

Of course it would take a woman peculiarly gifted in regard to children. She would have to have tact, firmness, patience, self-control, and that rare sympathetic imagination that alone can make it possible for a grown-up to pass by the antics and enter the heart of a child.

She would have to be one of those unselfish adults who can keep from uttering a command to a child every few seconds and who can stand immutably by a command once it has been given, even though it be much easier to yield.

Furthermore, the child would have to be absolutely given over to the training, for interference or division of authority would be fatal to the training.

The Wants-to-be-cynic interrupted me at this point as we discussed the subject.

"Very fine," said he, "but you forgot one thing."

"What?"

How About Training The Parent?

"After the child had been back home a week, he'd be the same child he was before. You'd have to train the parents as well as the child."

He was wrong. I hadn't forgotten. But as one always does in regard to the one difficulty in the way of an otherwise alluring plan, I tried to ignore it.

The child trainer might supply a resume of her methods to the parents when she returned the child; or she might spend a week or two with them and give them a short course in child discipline.

Only, well, if I were the trainer I'd rather train a dozen incorrigible children than one incorrigible parent.

Household Hints

MENUS FOR LARGE PARTIES.

Luncheon for Twenty-five Persons—Four loaves of bread or four dozen biscuits, eight pounds ham, two quarts pickles, one-half pound butter, one pound sugar, three-fourths pound coffee in six quarts water, three large cakes, one quart cream or one gallon milk, three can fruit or three quarts cranberries, one and one-half gallons ice cream.

Banquet for 100 Persons—One large ham, ten chickens, twenty loaves bread, four quarts cream, six pounds sugar, five pounds coffee, one gallon water, three large cakes, one quart cream or one gallon milk, three can fruit or three quarts cranberries, one and one-half gallons ice cream or five gallons sherbet. Candies. Fruit.

APPLE SAUCE.

Wash perfect apples, quarter and slice. Put into a granite pan with only enough water to cover. When done, rub through a colander, sweeten with white or light brown sugar; then add a small piece of butter and a very little grating of nutmeg. Serve cold. It is very wasteful to peel apples unless afterward some use is to be made of the peelings.

GREEN APPLE PIE.

Material: Apples, three; granulated sugar, one-half cup; water, two teaspoons; cinnamon and nutmeg; pastry flour, two cups; salt, one tablespoonful; lard, or vegetable fat, one-fourth cup; butter, one-fourth cup.

Directions—When pastry of any kind is to be made it is well to prepare for it by having all materials ready. It is the expansion of this cold air when baking, combined with the correct way of making it, which makes the pastry light and flaky.

Set the flour sifter in the mixing bowl and put into it flour and salt, then sift. Cut into this flour with a knife the lard and the butter. Do this quickly and until the butter, flour and lard seem to be well mixed. Then gradually add sufficient ice cream or at least cold water—to make a dough. Do not use one unnecessary stroke to do this.

Turn half this dough onto the pastry board, roll and cover the floury pie pan. The apples for this pie should be good, tart cooking apples. Peel and slice in the pastry lined pie pan, sprinkle over the sugar, dot with bits of butter, about a generous teaspoonful, sprinkle with cinnamon or nutmeg and add the given amount of water.

Roll out the upper crust, wet the edges of the lower crust with cold water, cover, press edges together and trim neatly. Take a thin, pointed knife and lift both crusts away from the pan, then, as the pie expands in baking both will come up together and no juice will run out. Bake in a moderately quick oven for forty-five minutes.

THE TABLE.

Sand Tart—Butter, three-fourths cup; brown sugar, one and one-half cups; eggs, two; flour, three and one-half cups; baking powder, two teaspoons; salt, one-half teaspoon; granulated sugar, one tablespoon; cinnamon, one-half teaspoon (sugar and cinnamon look like sand on the table). Cream butter and sugar and eggs which have been well beaten. Sift flour and baking powder and add to the egg, butter and sugar mixture. Chill. Roll one-eighth inch thick and sprinkle with granulated sugar and cinnamon. Cut in fancy shapes; serve with tea, food or hot.

Onions with Sausage—Take large white onions, peel and slice in salted water until about half done. Take out, remove centers (by pressing down with thumb), chop and mix with sausage meat, bread or cracker crumbs, pepper and salt. Fill onion cavities solid, put in shallow pan with just a little water and bake until a nice brown; bake once or twice. Bake about twenty minutes.

APPLE FRUIT COCKTAIL.

Peel large apples which have a fine flavor, and with a potato scoop cut small balls, dropping them into a little water with plenty of lemon juice added to keep them white. Prepare a mixture of grapefruit, pineapple and bananas, and put into the cocktail glasses; add a few of the apple balls; make a syrup of all the fruit juices and, when cold, pour it over the fruit.

PHOENIX WOMEN IN OVERALLS TO REPAIR BAD ROAD STRETCH

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 11.—If men haven't got "gumption" enough to mend the seven-mile stretch of highway between Higley and Chandler, suburbs of Phoenix, 400 club women intend to don overalls and sunbonnets and do the work themselves.

This was made plain when the members of the Women's Civic club of Chandler and the Linger Longer club of Higley announced that they were weary of waiting for the men to tackle the task of repairing the roadway. They secured a flock of mules, many road implements and began practicing their use. They declared they were ready and willing to essay the difficult task of transporting a rough trail into a gleaming boulevard and when they are convinced that the men are mere triflers, they promise to have the signal given, go to work, and put the males to the blush of shame.

Rely on Wind Exclusively.

So steady are the winds at Curacao that three wireless telegraph stations depend on windmills to furnish their power.

HOPE HE WASN'T MISTAKEN.

Father—Ar-r-r! So I have caught you kissing my daughter, have I? Sister—Trust there is no doubt about it. The light is quite dim and I should feel vastly humiliated if it should turn out to be somebody else I had been kissing.

SUFFRAGE PREPARING FOR CONGRESS TO OPEN

TWO RIVAL NATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS GETTING READY TO BUTTONE THE LAW-MAKERS.

NATIONWIDE CAMPAIGN

National Wide Campaign—Congressional Union Preparing for Big Movement to Obtain Proposed Amendment.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Two great armies of women suffrage advocates are mobilizing their forces for a campaign to make up for the loss of the Susan B. Anthony amendment, which will be introduced in Congress next December, provides (1) The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex.

(2) Congress shall have power, by appropriate legislation, to enforce the provisions of this article.

The Washington office of the Congressional Union is at present engaged in a nationwide campaign to demonstrate that there is a strong and widespread demand for the federal amendment. Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the executive committee of the Union, is directing the field work from various points of vantage while Miss Lucy Burns, vice chairman, is in command here.

It is the purpose of the Congressional Union leaders: (1) To have each and every congressman visited by a delegation made up from his own constituents; and urged to support the Anthony amendment.

(2) To have a grand rally of women voters at San Francisco September 14, 15 and 16 to adopt resolutions and arrange a program for the work of women voters after Congress meets.

(3) To have the greatest demonstration of women in Washington the week of the next Congress, ever seen in America.

At the convention of women voters in California in the fall we will make plans for definite political action on the part of the women voters in support of the national suffrage amendment. We expect about 1,000 women at the San Francisco conference. That will be the largest and most important body of women voters ever assembled.

From California the suffragists will work east, everybody heading for Washington, where 5,000 women will meet the visiting suffragists at Union station, and other convenient places and escort them to the capitol. The swarm of woman suffrage workers that arrive here that day will fill the city. They will come by train, automobile and wagon. Some of them will make the trip from Western states in machines.

That day we will march to the Capitol, present our petitions, and see that friends of the cause introduce the Anthony amendment, the proposition we will support.

A big convention will be held in Congress hall that week. There the thousands of suffrage pilgrims will be welcomed and greeted by enthusiastic speakers.

Sunday of that week a mass meeting will be held in Belasco theater, and on Monday, following, will come to these important ends the Congressional Union is directing all of its energies.

"Our plans have been carefully worked out, and are now being executed," said Miss Burns today. "We have already sent delegations to Senator O'Gorman and Representative Hunter of New York; Representative Lathrop of Maryland; and to the Virginia, Hill, Tilson, and Oakley of Connecticut, and others."

"We will have delegations call on every man in Congress before Congress meets in December. Our aim is to convince members of the Senate and House that women of their own states are in earnest in their efforts to secure a square deal at the polls."

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—There Is Some Class to Those New Servants.

"I have been attacked enough on the point of my moral standing," he declared, his high-pitched nasal voice quivering with an anger he had held below the explosive point during the most of his life. "I can stand the attacks of a sensational press, but when spiteful criticism follows me into my own vestry, almost in the sacred shadow of the altar itself, I am compelled to protest! I wish to state to this vestry, once and for all, that my moral status is above reproach, and that my conduct has been such as to receive the commendation of my Mother. Because it has pleased Divine Providence to place in my hands the distribution of the grain of the fields, I am constantly subject to the attacks of envy and malice! It has gone so far that I, last night, received from Rev. Smith Boyd, a request to resign from this vestry!" He paused in triumph on that, as if he had made against Rev. Smith Boyd a charge of such ghastly infamy that the young rector must shrivel before his eyes. "I have led a blameless life! I have never smoked nor drunk! I have paid every penny I ever owed and fulfilled every promise I ever made. I have obeyed the gospel and partaken of the sacraments, and the Divine Being has rewarded me abundantly! He has chosen me, because of my faithful stewardship, to gather the foot of corn from its sources and feed it to the mouths of the hungry; and I shall not depart from my stewardship in this church, because I am here, as I am everywhere, by the will of God!" Perhaps W. T. Chisholm was not shocked by this blasphemy, but the dismay of it was on every other face, even on that of Nicholas Van Ploon, who was compelled to dig deep to find his ethics.

"You infernal old thief!" wondered Manning, recovering from his amazement. "Was it Divine Providence which directed you to devise the scheme whereby the railroads paid you two dollars rebate on every car of wheat you shipped, and a dollar bonus on every car of wheat your competitors shipped? I could give you a string of sins as long as the catechism and you dare not deny one of them, because I can prove them on you! And yet you have the effrontery to say that a Divine Providence would establish you in your monopoly, by such secondarily means as you have risen to become the greatest dispenser of self-advertising charities in the world! You propose to ride into heaven on your universities and your libraries, and on the fact that you never smoked nor drank, nor swore nor gambled, but when you come face to face with this horrible new god you have created, a deity who would permit you to attain wealth by the vile methods you have used, you will find him with a pitchfork in his hands! I am glad that Doctor Boyd, though knowing your vindictive record, has had bravery enough to demand your resignation from this vestry! I hope he receives it!"

Joseph G. Clark had remained standing, and his head shook, as with a shudder, while he listened to the charge of Manning. He was a very old man, and it had been quite necessary for him to restrain his passions throughout his life.

"You will go first!" he shouted at Manning. "I am impregnable; but you have no business on this vestry! You can be removed at any time an examination is ordered, for I have heard you, we have all heard you, deny the immaculate conception, and thereby the divinity of Christ, in whom alone there is salvation!"

A hush like death fell on the vestry. Rev. Smith Boyd was the first to break the ghastly silence.

"Gentlemen," said he, "I do not think that we are in a mood today for further discussion. I suggest that we adjourn."

His voice seemed to distract the attention of Clark from Manning, at whom he had been gazing. He turned on Rev. Smith Boyd the remainder of the wrath which marked his first break into senility.

"As for you!" he snarled. "You will keep your fingers out of matters which do not concern you! You were hired to preach the gospel, and you will confine your attention to that occupation, preaching just what you find sanctioned in this book; nothing more, nothing less!" and taking a small volume which lay on the table, he tossed it in front of Rev. Smith Boyd.

It was the Book of Common Prayer, containing, in the last pages, the articles of Faith.

Clark seized his hat and coat, and strode out of the door, followed by the red-faced Chisholm, who had also been asked to resign. Nicholas Van Ploon rose, and shook hands with Rev. Smith Boyd.

"Sargent has told me about your plan for the new tenements," he stated. "I am in favor of buying the property."

"Well swing it for you, Boyd," promised Jim Sargent. "I've been talking with some of the other members, and they seem to favor the idea that the new Vedder court will be a great monument. There'll be no such magnificent charity in the world, and no such impressive sacrifice as giving up that cathedral! I think Cunningham will be with us, when it comes to a vote."

"Certainly," interposed Nicholas Van Ploon. "We don't need to make any profit from those tenements. The normal increase in ground value will be enough."

"Yes," said Cunningham slowly. "I am heartily in favor of the proposition."

"Coming along, doctor?" invited Manning, going for his coat and hat.

"No, I think not," decided Rev. Smith Boyd quietly.

He was sitting at the edge of the table facing the Good Shepherd, at the edge of whose robe still sparkled crystalline light, and in his two hands he thoughtfully held the Book of Common Prayer.

CHAPTER XXX.

Hand in Hand.

Rev. Smith Boyd walked slowly out into the dim church, with the little volume in his hand. The afternoon sun had sunk so low that the illumination from the stained-glass windows was cut off by the near buildings, and the patches of ruby and of sapphire, of emerald and of topaz, glowed now near the tops of the slender columns, or mellowed the dusky spaces up amid the arches.

It was hushed and silent there, deserted, and far from the thoughts of men. The young rector walked slowly up the aisle to a pew in the corner near the main entrance, and sat down, still with the little Book of Common Prayer in his hand, and, in the book, the Articles of Religion. From them alone must he preach; nothing more and nothing less. That was the duty for which he was hired. His own mind, his own intelligence, the reason and the spirit and the soul which God had given him were for no other use than the clever support of the things which were printed here. And who had formulated these articles? Men; men like himself.

Rev. Smith Boyd had no need to read those Articles of Religion. He had been over them countless times, and he knew them by heart, from beginning to end. He had opened wide the credulity of his mind, and had forced his belief into these channels, so that he might preach the gospel, not of Christ, but of his church, with a clean conscience. And he had done so. Whatever doubts there had lurked in him, from that one period of infidelity in his youth, he had shut off behind that wall which he would not peer. There were many things behind that wall which it were better for him not to see, he had told himself, lest, from among them, some false doctrine may creep up and poison the purity of his faith. He had thrown himself solidly on faith. Belief implicit and unflinching was necessary to the support of the dogmatic theology he taught, and he gave it that belief; implicit and unflinching. Reason had no part in religion or in theology; and for good cause!

But here had come a condition where reason, like a long-suppressed passion of the body, clamored insistently to be heard, and would have its voice, and strode in, and took loud possession. Joseph G. Clark, so filled with inquiry that he could not see his own sins, so rotted, to the depths of his soul, that he could twist every violation of moral law into a virtue, so sunken in the foulness of every possible onslaught upon mercy and justice and humanity that millions suffered from his deeds, this man could sit in the vestry of Market Square church, and control the destinies of an organization built ostensibly for the purpose of saving souls and spreading the gospel of mercy and justice and humanity, could sit in the seat of the holy, because, with his lips he could say: "I acknowledge Christ as my Redeemer!" Rufus Manning, whose life was an open page, whose record was one upon which there was no blot, who had lived purely and humanely and mercifully and compassionately, who had given freely of his time and of his goods for the benefit of those who were weak and helpless and needy, who had read deeply into human hearts, and had comforted them because he was gifted with a portion of that divine compassion which sent an only begotten Son to die upon the cross, that through his blood the sins of man might be washed away, this man could be driven from the vestry of Market Square church, itself guilty and stained with sin, because he could not, or would not, say with his lips, "I acknowledge Christ as my Redeemer!"

Reason made a terrific onslaught against faith at this juncture. Familiar as he was with the book, Rev. Smith Boyd turned to the Articles of Religion.

"We are accounted righteous before God, only for the merit of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ by Faith, and not for our own works or deserving."

"Works done before the grace of Christ, and the Inspiration of His Spirit, are not pleasant to God, for as much as they spring not of faith in Jesus Christ; neither do they make men meet to receive grace, or deserve grace of congruity: yea, rather, for that they are not done as God hath willed and commanded them to be done, we doubt not but they have the nature of sin."

There was some discrepancy here between the words and the faith of Clark and the words and the faith of Manning. Rev. Smith Boyd made no doubt that the Great Judge would find little difficulty in distinguishing between these two men, and in deciding upon their respective merits; but that was not the point which disturbed the young rector. It was the attitude of the church towards these men, and the fact that he must uphold that attitude. It was absurd! Rev. Smith Boyd was a devout and earnest and consistent believer, not merely in the existence of God, but in his greatness and his power and his glory, his justice and his mercy and his wisdom; but Rev. Smith Boyd suddenly made the starling discovery that he was not preaching God! He was preaching the church and its creed!

Started, now, he went through the thirty-nine Articles of Religion, one by one, slowly, thoughtfully, and with a quickened conscience. Reason knocked at the door of Faith, and entered; but it did not drive out Faith. They sat side by side, but each gave something to the other. No, rather, Reason stripped the mask from Faith, tore away the disguising cloak, and displayed her in all her simple beauty, sweet and gentle and helpful. What was the faith he had been called upon to teach? Faith in the thirty-nine Articles of Religion! This had been cleverly substituted by the organizers of an easy profession, for faith in God, which latter was too simple of comprehension for the purposes of any organization.

For a long time Rev. Smith Boyd sat in the corner pew, and when he had closed the book, all that had been behind the wall of his mind came out, and was sorted into heaps, and the bad discarded and the good retained. He found a wonderful relief in that. He had lived with a secret chamber in his heart, hidden even from himself, and now that he had opened the door, he felt free. Above him, around him, within him, was the presence of God, infinite, tender, easy of understanding; and from that God, his God, the one which should walk with him through life his friend and comforter and counselor, he stripped every shred of pretense and worthless form and useless ceremony!

"I believe in God the Creator; the Maker of my conscience; my Friend and Father." The creed of Gail!

For a moment the rector stood, tall and erect, then he stretched forth his arms:

"I know that my Redeemer liveth!" he said, and sank to his knees.

Two high points he had kept in his faith, points never to be shaken; the existence of his creator, his mercy and his love, and the divinity of his son, who died, was crucified and buried, and on the third day arose to ascend unto heaven. Reason could not destroy that citadel in a man born to the necessity of faith! Man must believe some one thing. If it was as easy, as he had once set forth, to believe in the biblical account of the creation of the world as to believe in a pre-existent chaos, out of which evolved the spirit of life, and all its marvels of growing trees and flying birds and reasoning men, it was as easy to go one step further, and add the son to the father and to the holy ghost! Even chaos must have been created!

DREAMS COME TRUE.

War's Battles in the Air and Under the Surface of the Sea.

From the beginning of time men have dreamed of flying. Winged horses and magic carpets figure in the literature of all ages. It was not an impossible dream, and the sight of the birds around them inspired inventors of the earliest time to attempt to overcome the laws of gravitation which bound them to the surface of the earth. However, it was not until the latter part of the eighteenth century that a man was able to suspend himself above the surface, and more than another century passed before any important improvement was made on the earliest balloon manufactured in France.

Within the last ten years the dream of flying has come true, and the machines have been perfected to such a degree that man can now outstep the birds of the air just as the locomotive and the automobile have enabled him to distance the fleetest footed animals. Other wonders of invention which have seen the light during the last century and a half, beginning with the steam engine, were hardly thought of before they became realities. In some past age a prophet had predicted that a man would be able to talk to another man 1,000 miles away or that the voice of a living man could be so recorded that it could be heard after his death, the prophet would have been scoffed at, yet these wonders came to pass before the aeroplane was invented, though men looked forward to flying since the beginning of time. So fast do modern inventions change the conditions under which we live that it is quite within the limits of possibility that the wars of the future will be fought mainly in the air and under the surface of the sea.—New York Globe.

Meaning of Half Mast.

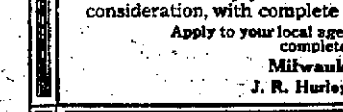

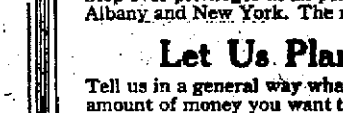

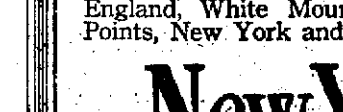

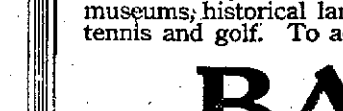

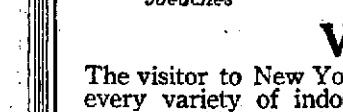

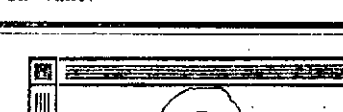

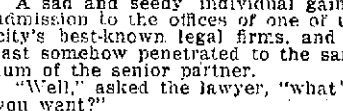

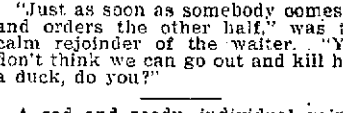

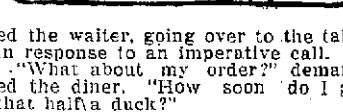

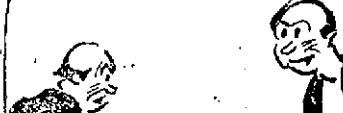

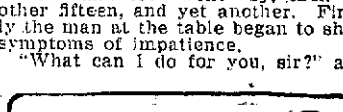

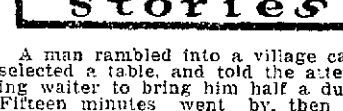

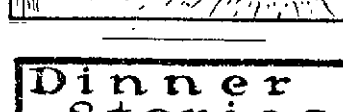

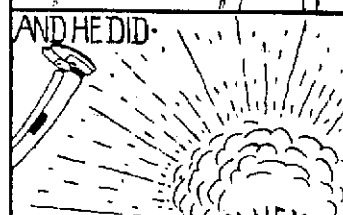

Ever since flags were used in war, says the Yorkshire Post, it has been the custom to have the emblem of the superior or conquering nation above that of the inferior or vanquished. When an army found itself hopelessly beaten it hauled its flag down far enough for the flag of the victors to be placed above it on the same pole. That was a token not only of submission, but of respect. In those days when a famous soldier died flags were lowered out of respect to his memory. The custom long ago passed into common use. The flag flying at half mast is a sign that one is dead who was worthy of universal respect. The space left above the flag is for the flag of the great conqueror of all—the angel of death.

Two Valuable Qualities.

The greatest results in life are usually attained by simple means and the exercise of ordinary qualities. These may for the most part be summed up in these two—common sense and perseverance.—Feltbam.

The visitor was nothing if not frank.

"Half a dollar," he said boldly.

The man's unusual demeanor caught the lawyer's curiosity.

"There you are," he said, handing out the money. "And now I should like to have you tell me how you came to fall so low in the world."

The visitor laughed. "All my youth," he explained, "I had counted on inheriting something from my uncle, but when he died he left all he had to an orphan asylum."

"A philanthropist," commented the lawyer. "What did his estate consist of?"

"Ten children," said the visitor—and vanished.

Never Saw a Woman Do It.

"I've seen millions, I don't know but billions, of men and boys stop to compare their watches by the chronometers in jewelers' windows," said a man who thinks his watch is always correct, and who likes himself to so compare it, "but I never saw a woman do that. Did you?"

Thin Men and Women

DO YOU WANT TO GET FAT AND BE STRONG?

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods, rubbing on useless "flash creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract properly assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere, which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This preparation is called Sargol and much remarkable testimony is given as to its successful use in flesh building. Sargol, which comes in the form of a small non-injurious tablet, taken at meals and mixing with the digesting food, tends to prepare the fat, flesh and muscle building elements so that the blood can readily accept and carry them to the starved portions of the body. You can readily picture the transformation that additional and previously lacking flesh-making material should bring with your neck, shoulders and bust disappearing and your taking on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid healthy flesh. Sargol is harmless, inexpensive, efficient. All leading druggists of this vicinity have it and are authorized to refund your money if weight increase is not obtained as per the guarantee found in each large package.

NOTE:—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

A sad and seedy individual gained admission to the offices of one of the city's best-known legal firms, and at last somehow penetrated to the sanctum of the senior partner.

"Well," asked the lawyer, "what do you want?"

"What about my order?" demanded the diner. "I'd soon do I get that half a duck?"

"Just as soon as somebody comes in and orders the other half," was the calm rejoinder of the waiter. "You don't think we can go out and kill half a duck, do you?"

"What can I do for you, sir?" asked the waiter, going over to the table in response to an imperative call.

Peter Stuyvesant's Tree. A pear tree was brought, in 1647 or 1655, to the Bowery, New York, then called Bouwerie, by Peter Stuyvesant, and planted on the spot which is now the northeast corner of Thirteenth street and Third avenue. It bore fruit for 200 years, after which it was cut down. A cross-section may be seen in the New York Historical society building.

How to Fight Tuberculosis

In a paper read before the Texas County Medical Society and published in part in the Louisville "Medical Progress," Dr. E. W. Carhart, of San Antonio, Texas, a physician who has devoted much time to the study of tuberculosis, said: "Since lime salts constitute three-fourths of all the mineral substances of the human body, they must be supplied in the foods or supplemented in mineral preparations. Tuberculosis is due to the deficiency of lime salts in the diet, and the widespread and unchecked spread of tuberculosis and other preventable diseases is due largely to the deficient (lime lacking) conditions of multitudes throughout the civilized world."

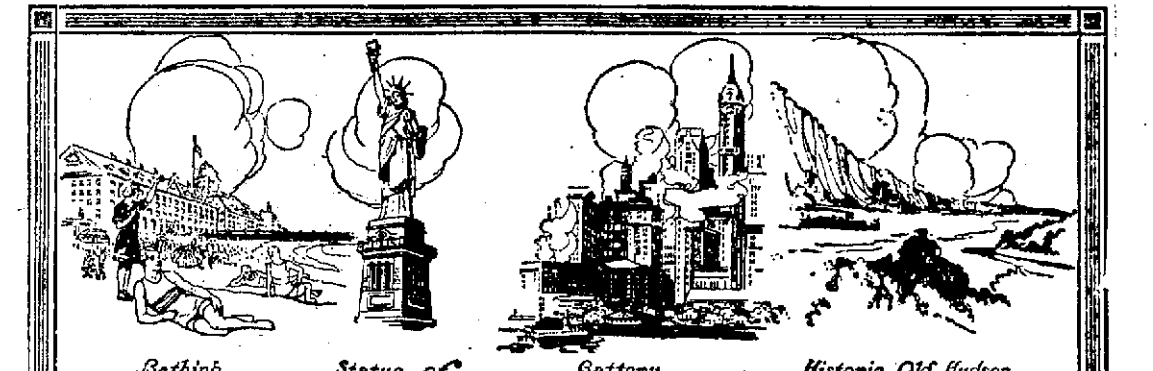

Thus from another authoritative medical source comes justification for the use of lime in the treatment of tuberculosis. Since this is one of the ingredients of Beckman's Alternative, much of the success attending the widespread use of this remedy doubtless is due to the combination of the salt in such a way as to render it easily assimilable. It causes no stomach disturbance and since it contains neither opiates, narcotics nor habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try.

Beckman's Alternative has effected remarkable results in numerous cases of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) and allied chronic affections of the throat and bronchial passages. In many instances such conditions, apparently, have yielded completely to it.

EXCITING FINISHES IN TUESDAY'S RACES

TWO DIVISIONS OF 2:30 CLASS
TROT PROVIDE THRILLS FOR TRACK FANS.

EXCELLENT TIME MADE

Senator Mullberger's Horse Wins
First Division and Stutz Chimes
Takes Second Division—
Beat Time 2:19 3/4.

Close finishes and fast time marked the races yesterday at the Janesville fair despite the fact that it was opening day and slower class events were scheduled. Expectations of slow races did not come true and some of the horses yesterday will receive new marks. The manner in which the horses finished yesterday was the most exciting part of the track events for in every race no one horse won with a good lead. In the second division of the 2:30 trot in two heats nine horses were bunched as close as safety would allow and the positions changed in nearly every quarter in the two laps around the half mile track.

In the first race, the two-year-old trot and pace, Tramp Out, the roan mare owned and driven by O. Amundsen of Detroit, took the two straight heats, winning the first money of the $200 purse. Sir Walsingham, owned by H. W. Pilling of Burlington, took second and George Custer, the dark bay, owned by J. C. Nichols of this city, finished fourth out of a field of seven. Win. H. owned by H. Hawkey of Burlington, failed to show the expected speed among the two year olds.

In the other races the drivers experienced trouble in keeping the horses from bucking as this is one of the first races of the season and there has been limited time for training upon the track because of bad weather, until the last fortnight.

In the first division race of the 2:30 trot, Peter Ax surprised the "win one" and came home the winner by taking the last two of the five heats after making only a fair showing in the early heats. J. M. Huggins' pretty black horse, driven by Holt, got away to a good start by taking first in the first two heats and second in the third, but was forced to withdraw when a nail was kicked up. In the fourth heat in both heats the driver had trouble in holding the horse from breaking and in the second heat when John Burr was "brooding" down the inside of the track, closely followed by Glenn C., the leader broke near the wire, but a masterly effort brought him under the wire—a winner by a nose.

In the third heat Peter Ax began to show a close pair of heels to the field of ten and in the last quarter came under the wire a close third, behind John Burr, who was led by Dolly Deyard. One near accident marred this race in the third heat when Peter Ax and Ray Jolla collided after a false start down the first quarter. The driver managed to control the mounts and broke no bones, the only damage caused.

In the second division of the 2:30 trot, nine started and faster time was made in this field, the best being 2:19 3/4. Stutz Chimes, the black gelding owned and driven by J. P. Fent, won first money, after a hard race with Morely, who was second. Stutz Chimes took the first heat, but was beaten in the next two when both of the leaders were brought to the wire under the last neck and neck. Belle Patch, an Oshkosh horse after a poor start, finishing eighth in the first heat, came through and took third money for the owner, J. E. Daly.

In the 2:25 pace there was a field of twelve starters and King B., the brown gelding owned and driven by F. T. Shaw of Kalamazoo, took first money in three straight heats.

The best time was 2:15. King B. jumped into an early lead every lap and hung to the front, having plenty of reserve speed for the finish. Togo Light, picked as a winner by many in this race, finished second by taking this position two straight heats.

During the entire races there was but one scratch entry among the large fields at the start. At times the horses were so bunched down the home stretch that drivers who held back reserve speed were unable to use it because of being "pocketed" at the finish.

The race summary follows:
2 Year Old Trot and Pace.
Tramp Out 1 1
Sir Walsingham 2 2
The Alm 3 4
King B. 4 3
Acol Patch, Wm. H., Vera Tramp started.

SECURE ARMY TEAM TO MEET CARDINALS

Best Baseball Players Among United States Regulars Will Play Here Sunday.

Sunday afternoon the Janesville Cardinals will cross bats with the best United States army team, the pick of the entire regular army at the Association diamond. The soldier lads, headquarters at Chicago and their playing has attracted wide attention, the club winning many games against the best amateur clubs in the country. The whole team is composed of ex-league players whose experience in baseball has been wide and varied.

Against them the Cardinals will have "Hot" Packey McFarland, Janesville fans are thoroughly convinced that he has it all over his brother, George, when it comes to pitching ability. George will be secured also and may play in the outfield. Rasmussen is billed to do the catching, but Manager Caldwell is making an effort to obtain Silverthorn of Louisville, the "kid" catcher, who is developing into a wonder of a backstop. Silverthorn as a catcher takes a back seat to no one when it comes to throwing bases and despite his age, this lad has many years of experience behind the bat with high class pitchers.

For first base the Cardinals will have Nelson, the Chicago Grey first baseman, and this lad looks every inch a ball player. He has played with the Rockford leaguers until his peppy nature got him into trouble. He can field the position in a faultless manner and is a dangerous water. "Denny" Blake will play at second and the Bolivider man has been playing a bang-up game with the Cardinals, hitting strong and sliding in the thousand class. Blake, in games played in a Cardinal uniform, has got a double in each combat, besides five singles, in two games. Kernan, who played third last Sunday will be at short, his regular place and this hole will be plugged nicely with the Chicago man. It is not known who is to play at third at the present time.

Curtis Morrissey and Chamberlain or George Fack will be in the outfield. Fans welcomed the batting streak made by both Morrissey and Chamberlain last Sunday and it appears that both men have struck their stride.

PACKEY WILL GET $583 PER MINUTE IN GIBBONS FIGHT

Packey McFarland today.

When Packey McFarland and Mike Gibbons do their high finance boxing act at Brighton Beach September 11 they will pull down record bank rolls over the ten-round distance. McFarland is to get $17,500 and Gibbons $15,000. At that rate Packey will receive $1,750 for each round and $583.33 1/3 each minute. They are to get all this money for a bout in which no referee's decision will be given.

Five Others Injured When Car Crashes Through Bridge Rail at Cleveland, Ohio.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Cleveland, Aug. 11.—One man was killed and five seriously injured today in an automobile in which a party was returning from the Griffith-Saylor prize fight crashed down a fifty foot embankment after leaping through the rail of the bridge over the Erie railroad several miles southeast of the city. The dead, George F. Murray, shipping clerk, 35 years old, injured: F. S. Henry, manufacturer, ankle broken; Daniel Steele, chauffeur; Charles Woodman, tool maker; Walter Stribinger, real estate dealer; Walter J. Van Umm, policeman. Steele was driving. Police say Steele lost control of the car and failed to make the turn.

WILLOWDALE CUBS DEFEAT HARMONY FEDERALS 22 TO 3

The Willowdale Cubs defeated the Harmony Federals, Sunday, on their own diamond, by a score of 22 to 3. Eastman, the Whitehorse pitcher, secured twenty strike-outs for his team. Bowles played a star game at first base and he also did well with the stick. The Harmony players acknowledged that they were not in the class of the fast Willowdale nine. Next Sunday the Cubs meet the Magnolia Sluggers at Hutton's diamond. Magnolia is one of the fastest teams in Rock county.

Fans in Manhattan root three ways: For the Giants to win the National League pennant, for the Yankees to win the American League pennant, and for the Brooklyn Dodgers to win the National League pennant if the Giants can't. The plucky spurts of the Giants lately have evoked more spontaneous rooting than at any time last year, when the team was supposed to be a pennant winner and wasn't. With less expected of the Giants this year, they are hustling better right now, and their efforts are appreciated.

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

Pete Schneider, the big, quiet-mannered pitcher of the Reds, is one of the season's hard luck hurlers. Though with an eighth-place team, Peter manages to win, right along, more games than he loses. What might Schneider do with a first division club? Schneider is a tall right-hander, with a great burst of speed—the catchers say not three men in the league have any more steam—a good quick-breaking curve, and unusual batting power for a pitcher. He is an iron man, willing to work any number of innings, and recently essayed the feat of pitching a doubleheader. Pete got away with the first game, and only retired from the second struggle when errors had made his position untenable against the enemy. In another year the big fellow ought to rank with the very finest whizzers of the sphere.

John Philip Sousa, the band-master, is having a great time out on the Pacific coast. The native sons have found that the band leader is an enthusiast at trap shooting (notice we spelled it with a t), and are holding shoots for him all along the line. The most recent one was at Seattle where J. P. S. showed the local shooters that his eye is just as quick at following a gun barrel as a music scale.

Bill James, one of the Brave hurlers that made possible the club's sensational start last season, will be left to the club in its attempt to regain the lead. James' arm has failed him and physicians say that only a complete rest will put it back in shape. So James has been granted a suspension at his own request so he can go to his home in Seattle and rest.

Vic Sailer of the Cubs, is one of the Stars of the National pastime. Yet he seldom gets his name anywhere but in the box scores. Sailer leads his team in batting with a percentage well above .300, and has potted out more doubles and triplets than any man in the old league. He is fourth among the base thieves and has scored more runs than anybody. Also he is all that could be desired as a fielder. Perhaps Sailer's comparative ive obscurity is due to the fact that he has devoted the greater part of his attention to base ball, ignoring fist clashes with umpires, bellhops, train porters, etc. If Heinie Zimmerman is a star we know of no word that would fit Sailer.

Eddie Plank, the forty-year-old southpaw, has pitched some great games during his sixteen seasons of service in the major leagues, but he probably never uncorked a better contest than he exhibited recently in the fourteen-inning battle against the Whales of Chicago. True, Plank was beaten, 2-0, but a great battle it was. The Whales made only three hits off the sidewheeler. What's more, he had perfect control, passing only one batter, Jackson, in the final frame. In eleven of the fourteen innings Plank retired the "Whales" in one, two, three order. He did not allow a single safety from the third to the fourteen-inning, giving him ten hitless rounds in a row. During the entire contest only five men reached first base on him, three on hits, one on a pass and one on an error by Vaughn.

Jess Willard does not like to see women at the ringside when he fights. That is one reason he was glad the war prevented the coming of Paris as the scene of his fight with Jack Johnson.

OPINIONS REVERSED CONCERNING THE WAR

EX-SENATOR BEVERIDGE'S IM-PRESSIONS WERE RADICAL-
LY CHANGED AS RE-SULT OF VISIT.

AMERICA MISINFORMED

People of United States Were Misled
About Many Things During Early Days of European Conflict.

(By Albert J. Beveridge.)
Albert J. Beveridge, former senator from Indiana and well known writer on political subjects, returned recently from Europe, where he spent several months studying the war. His war articles have been eagerly read, and his new book, "What Is Back of the War," bids fair to be one of the most popular books dealing with the European great conflict. In this article, Senator Beveridge interestingly sets down some of his impressions.—The Editor.

When the editor of an American journal proposed to me that I go to Europe and write a series of articles on the real conditions in the warring countries, I accepted because I thought it was a great opportunity to witness at least one phase of this greatest conflict in the history of the world. Also, it seemed to me to be quite certain that this war was so great as to affect profoundly in a permanent way every country in the world, including our own country.

polon, rolled into one, do not at all equal the present-day conflict even up to the present stage.

So, to study conditions on the ground and report what actually was seen and heard, was a big and worthwhile undertaking.

It is only human nature that one who already has formed an opinion should entertain a fervent and yet honest desire that reports from the field of action confirm and encourage his views. Thus it was that the journey was undertaken under the handicap of choosing between writing the truth or offending cherished opinions of the American public.

The average American wishes to know the truth of any such matter which interests him and to make his decision only upon the facts; yet it is natural that he receives, with reluctance, a report which is contrary to his wishes. But history must be written according to the facts, rather than to carefully planned and misleading design.

Had to Revise Beliefs.
In nearly every step of my investigation I was struck in the face by facts which struck me, so completely were they the reverse of what I had read.

For example, at the time I went to Europe, it was published broadcast and repeated time and time again that the Germans were almost starving; hundreds of our papers gave detailed accounts of bread riots in Berlin and other German cities. But I found that food was abundant and prices very cheap. When I so stated in my articles, many close friends could not at first believe it.

Again, it was said that Germany was woefully short of ammunition, that her copper supply had given out, that she had no oil, and, therefore, that she soon would be forced to succumb. A review of the newspapers of last November and December show how widely this impression had been circulated. On the evening before I sailed I dined with one of the most carefully informed men in the United States, and perhaps in any country—a man whose business it is to be widely and accurately informed. He told me that the shortage of war munitions in Germany, especially oil and copper, would end the war in a short time. So when I found that these carefully circulated reports were unfounded and wrote the exact facts, they were received at first with incredulity.

Still another example: We had been told that Bernhardi's war book was the great popular German book, that everybody in Germany had read it, and that it expressed German purposes, spirit and philosophy. I found on the contrary that comparatively few Germans in Germany had read this book or even heard of it; that only six thousand copies had been printed in that country and that not all of these had been sold; and finally that scholars and business men in Germany had heard of the book for the first time after the war broke out.

Yet so profoundly had the American public been impressed with the statements about Bernhardi's book that the real facts were received at first with reluctance.

Finds Emperor's Health Good.
One more striking illustration: At the time I sailed, long, careful, detailed and specific accounts were given about the alarming condition of the emperor's health. These accounts said that he was broken down physically, that he was a nervous wreck, that an operation on his throat prevented him from uttering a word, and many of them declared that the emperor's mind was affected. Some of these accounts went so far as to say that the emperor could not live very long, and there was one paper, as I remember, which asserted that preparations for his funeral were under way.

It was because of these, outrageous, untrue statements that I only reluctantly agreed to write an account of my meeting with the emperor. I did this in order to state the fact; for instead of what we had been told about him, I found the fact to be that he was in perfect health and in splendid spirits, without the least sign of nervousness, and that his powerful mind worked with an amazing clearness, force and precision. I thought it only just that the public should be told the truth about the condition of this wonderful man in view of the falsehoods which had been circulated about him; otherwise, I would not have mentioned meeting him since I could not report a word of his two hours' conversation.

These are only a few examples of general public misinformation in America just a short time ago. The same thing, of course, was found in France and England, particularly in the latter country.

For instance, we had been officially informed that Great Britain went into this war only on account of the Belgian matter; and hundreds of articles, booklets and editorials based on this report were circulated all over America. I was astounded to find in England that Great Britain would have gone to war if Belgium had never been the subject of the war.

Has Praise for French.
I cannot say too much for the French, their courtesy, hospitality and efficiency of feeling. For example, out of the scores of French gentlemen whom I met and conversed with, not one of them asked me what I found conditions in Germany to be, although these French men and women all knew that I had just come from Germany and had spent some time with the emperor. Only twice in France did anyone ask me about conditions in Germany and on each of those occasions the person asking the question was not French.

At luncheon, where I met several pleasant French people, one of the guests was from another country. This person said with great eagerness: "What did you find in Germany?" I answered that if I should go back to Germany and Mr. Chamberlain or any other friend I have in that country were to ask me what I found in France, I would answer that I might tell him in Switzerland or that I would publish the account of my French investigation in America, but that I would not tell him in Germany. At this answer two or three of these French ladies and gentlemen cried out: "Quite right!" and everybody except this impolite questioner clapped their hands.

I think we hardly appreciate in this country the economic revolution going on in the countries at war. The change is very great indeed, along with this economic phase of the conflict is the advance of democratic collectivism. Indeed, it is just possible that after decades have passed away, the world will say that economic, social and political changes being wrought by the war is the struggle.

In view of the fact that I found almost everything which was circulated and believed in this country at the time I went to Europe to be untrue, I have come to look with much caution on any report of conditions which is circulated in the home and which may turn out to be equally erroneous.

The senate killed the Bray bill to amend the Hedding act, passed by the legislature, in order to provide that the tax paid on grain stored in elevators shall not be used as an offset against the income tax. Senator Bray quoted authorities, including the tax commission, as saying the tax rate fixed by the Hedding law, one-eighth of one mill, as absurdly low. The motion to indefinitely postpone was made by Senator Baxter, Superior. The vote was 16 to 8.

Senator Martin offered a substitute to the Albers bill placing the state industrial school under the additional supervision of the board of control. It calls for a committee to investigate conditions and needs of the school. Action was deferred until today. Senator Bennett, opposing the committee plan, said enough had already been learned through the special visiting committee, and that for his own part he believed the school should be moved from Milwaukee and located at Taycheedah or anywhere else.

The senate after adopting numerous amendments passed the revisor's fish and game codification bill, a measure running 110 printed pages.

The senate killed the senate joint resolution, offered early in the session, embodying the Husting view on conservation. It provided that the state may preserve, develop, regulate or improve water powers, lands and forests. The vote stood 15 to 8. The Budlong bill, requiring vestibuled street cars in certain cities to have a device for opening the doors at both ends was killed. Third reading was ordered for the Carl Hansen bill for a committee consisting of the governor, the attorney general and one member appointed by the governor to investigate the state's swamp land claims. A motion to reconsider was placed on today's calendar.

The Bennett bill to repeal the eugenics marriage law was killed by the following vote:

To kill the bill—Bosshard, Bray, Everett, Huber, Kellogg, Monk, Rollman, Skogmo, Staudenmayer, Tomkins, Whitman—11.

Against killing—Albers, Baxter, Bennett, Burke, Fairchild, Hanson, Martin, Perry, Potts, Stevens, Whitman—10.

The Bichler bill to abolish the office of state claim agent was passed by the following vote:

For the bill—Bosshard, Everett, Huber, Kellogg, Monk, Potts, Rollman, Skogmo, Staudenmayer, Tomkins, Whitman—11.

Against the bill—Albers, Baxter, Bennett, Bray, Burke, Fairchild, Martin, Perry, Stevens, Whitman—10.

The Crosby bill creating a marketing department of the dairy and food commission was passed by a vote of 11 to 1.

The senate also concurred in a bill by Mr. Arneemann appropriating $513 to reimburse Winnebago county for money erroneously paid into the state treasury during a period of years.

The vote by which the university extension bill was passed was:

For the bill—Barwig, Baxter, Bichler, Bosshard, Bray, Everett, Fairchild, Huber, Jennings, Kellogg, Monk, Potts, Rollman, Skogmo, Staudenmayer, Stevens, Tomkins, Whitman—18.

Against the bill—Albers, Bennett, Burke, Hanson, Martin, Perry—6.

Senator Huber introduced a bill to appropriate $500 to set up a suitable marker over the neglected grave of the late Governor W. R. Taylor in Forest Hill cemetery, Madison. A similar bill in the assembly earlier in the day failed. Resolutions were presented in the senate by Senators Barwig and Monk, respectively, on the death of Editor Folkman of the Banner, Mayville, and ex-Senator M. C. Ring, Neillville.

At the request of Senator Skogmo for Senator Scott, the Scott bill repealing the state athletic commission law was withdrawn and returned to the author.

STATE SENATE GETS DOWN TO BUSINESS

IMPORTANT MEASURES DISPOSED OF AT BUSY SESSION TUES-DAY AFTERNOON.

PASS APPROPRIATIONS

Bill Allowing $206,100 for University
Extension Department Passed.—
Kill Bill Repealing Eugenics Law.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 11.—Some of the results of Tuesday afternoon's senate session were the passage of the university extension appropriation bill, unopposed as received from the assembly; passage of the Bichler bill abolishing the office of state claim agent; killing of the Bennett bill repealing the eugenics marriage law; concurrence in the Crosby bill creating a direct marketing department of the dairy and food commission; killing of the Mortensen bill repealing the county board of education law; and passage of several large appropriation bills.

Passage was given to the following appropriations: Attorney general's department, $30,000 annually, with $5,000 for contingent fund; university extension, $206,100 annually, with $3,000 for books, equipment, etc.; state department of engineering, $18,000 annually; branch experiment stations at Ashland Junction, Spooner and Marshfield, $18,500 annually, with $7,000 for new buildings. Third reading was ordered for a bill appropriating $31,450 for the Wisconsin industrial school for girls, Milwaukee; and the assembly bill appropriating $193,200 to the office of secretary of state, the department's unexpended balance to revert to the general fund.

The Albers bill for two normal schools in the northeastern part of the state was killed.

Senator Whitman made a defense of the finance committee's report on the university appropriation bill. It was not a bad thing to have an unexpended balance, he said, provided it was kept as a reserve and not spent merely to use it up. The committee had relied upon the statements furnished by the university heads. Admitting that the amounts asked are large, the finance committee he said was forced to admit that it will take all that is asked to run the institution. Senator Bosshard protested against what he said was Senator Akeley's "habit of appropriating cuts, regardless of effect." Senator Bray objected because no senators made a fight for the Akeley amendments. He said he had voted for them. They were killed "up one fell swoop," without a roll call.

Every member of every board or commission merged by the consolidation bill is specifically recognized in a joint resolution offered by Senator Bosshard, expressing the thanks of the legislature for their public spirited service for the state. The measure was opposed by Senator Bennett, who saw in it a political instrument capable of being wielded on the stump in the next campaign. He believed it would be used by its recipients as a "certificate of character." It was passed with only the votes of Senators Bennett, Burke, Martin and Perry in opposition.

The senate killed the Bray bill to amend the Hedding act, passed by the legislature, in order to provide that the tax paid on grain stored in elevators shall not be used as an offset against the income tax. Senator Bray quoted authorities, including the tax commission, as saying the tax rate fixed by the Hedding law, one-eighth

PASS JITNEY BILL IN AMENDED FORM

Measure Which Now Goes to Governor Meets With Approval of Jitney Men.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 11.—Practically no opposition was offered in the assembly to the passage to the jitney bill in its amended form. The bill which now goes to the governor removes many of the obstacles which Jitney men found in the original bill. It removes all possibility of the railroad commission passing upon the necessity of the service on any route. The maximum bond has been reduced from $10,000 to $5,000 and the minimum that may be collected for an accident to one person is reduced from $5,000 to $2,500. The schedule clause is changed so that jitneys need only specify the hours during which they contemplate operating in their application filed with the railroad commission.

The assembly refused to admit the Nelson bill appropriating $500 to mark the grave of the late William R. Taylor. Assemblyman Axel Johnson objected to the introduction of the bill saying that he was not opposed to the appropriation, but the bill was offered too late in the session. Assemblyman Ellingson moved a suspension of the rules and left the room, while the vote was taken. Had he been present to vote for his own motion it would have prevailed.

Not a voice was raised against the Hambrecht bill reorganizing the state board of public affairs and giving the governor power to nominate the secretary, who must be confirmed by the board. The bill was passed and is now in the senate. The finance committee bill fixing the appropriation for county agricultural representatives at $28,000 for the biennium, an increase of $2,000 over the past biennium, was killed.

On motion of Assemblyman Kubaska, the Ploeger bill creating the county of Burke was taken from the table and killed. Passage was given to a substitute bill offered by Assemblyman Caldwell of Lodi returning the automobile license fee money to the towns after the cost of administering the law has been deducted. The bill directs that the towns shall use the money for the oiling and dragging of the dirt roads. The money that should go to the cities is turned into the state highway fund of the county for new highway construction.

Every member voted for the passage of the Kurtenacker bill adjusting the Minnesota-Wisconsin boundary dispute, under which Warren Island, near La Crosse, was given by the state of Minnesota to Wisconsin, and Lash Island, near Winona, Minn., is given by the state of Wisconsin to Minnesota. Both of these islands have been donated by wealthy citizens to their respective cities.

The assembly killed a bill offered through the assembly judiciary committee creating a visiting committee of seven members to supervise the Milwaukee county institutions. Assemblyman Hedding favored the measure. It was opposed by Assemblyman Donnelly, who said there was no use of so many inspectors.

The assembly passed a bill on the inspection of cattle and horses for shipment into other states. The measure provides that this inspection shall be made by veterinarians appointed by the state veterinarian for that purpose. It was stated on the floor that the measure had the approval of Dr. O. H. Ellison, state veterinarian. The house concurred in the Bosshard bill providing for the maintenance and repair of bridges across waters forming a boundary line between two or more counties.

Early in the afternoon the session of the assembly was halted by a call of the house. Only fifty-five members reported on a roll call and it was necessary to send out and bring back five members who were about the city. As it requires the votes of sixty members to pass appropriation bills, the sergeant at arms was directed to keep the doors locked so that the members would be required to remain in their seats until the work of the session had been completed. The assembly adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning.

It now seems probable that the work of the session will be concluded this week, but it is probable that it may take until Friday noon to complete the task.

EQUAL SUFFRAGISTS PLEASED AT RULING

Decree Establishing Same Wage
Scale for Men and Women in Illinois, Meets General Approval.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Equal suffragists were jubilant today, according to Mrs. Grace Wilbur Tront, president of the Illinois suffrage association, over the action of the state board of administration, which yesterday decreed that women employed in state institutions shall receive the same pay as men, where they do the same work.

In a statement, she said: "Illinois women can vote and students of political economy know that no class of persons in history, deprived of a voice in this government, has ever received fair treatment by the government."

"The action of the state board is economically good," she continued. "It protects the men, for where women receive the same compensation as men, the temptation to replace the men with equally capable women at a lower rate of pay is removed. The state is to be congratulated on this act of fairness."

The new regulations provide that the same minimum scale of wages shall apply to men and women employed in state institutions; that all employees shall have one day of rest in seven, an automatic promotional scale and that changes from night to day service shall be made weekly instead of monthly as has been the practice.

President Kern of the state board said: "There is no reason why a nurse in a state institution should not receive the same wages as men attendants in the same class of work. It should have been recognized long ago. We believe we are establishing the right standard this time and it will tend to increase efficiency in all institutions."

KIDDIES IN THRONES ENJOY FAIR WONDERS

HUNDREDS OF CHILDREN HAVE TIME OF THEIR LIVES ON OPENING DAY.

APPLAUD HORSE RACES

Excited Youngsters Clap Their Hands and Cheer at Neck and Neck
Finishes.—Hawkers
Hold Lure.

Between two and three thousand children went home from the opening day of the fair, the first day, tired, possibly a little dirty, but all tremendously happy over the outing made possible by the Park association management.

All children under fourteen years of age were admitted free to the grounds yesterday, and needless to say, young Janesville took full opportunity of their advantage and made the most of it. When the grand stand was opened there was a great throng of children, and after being seated and accustomed to the wonders of the grounds, they settled themselves to watch what transpired. And do not think that the thousands of youngsters did not appreciate the horse races, for the shouting and applauding yesterday would equal that of the stand filled with lusty lunged adults. In the exciting races the kids clapped and cheered as the horses came around the curve on the home stretch, and whenever there was a neck and neck finish and the horse being managed to win out under the "red hot" stands, the baby sugar candy and novelty stands the "kiddies" wandered, "drinking" in the unceasing flow of adjectives of the leather-lunged hawkers, for they were happy to see their way. More than one child went happily home with a creation of wax that resembled a doll, larger than the little one who won it. There were oceans and oceans of soda-pop with many enticing colors, and peanuts galore to be consumed, and together with these wonderful eatables came the pleadings of the youngsters for the balloons, squanders and ticklers, and generally the fond parents yielded to the pleadings and again there was a wide smile.

Fired of the hawkers' stands and the merry-go-round, the children wandered through the exhibit buildings, glad to obtain a relief from the noise of carnival row. They entered the buildings with but mild interest but before going far they were engaged by with the wonder of the domestic animal kingdom and the industrial exhibits.

"Hully gee, Willie, come over here and look at dis fellow eat popcorn," said one urchin in the poultry building, and his small eyes were narrowed in wonder, watching a fat gander poking his head out of the wire and eating the gifts with a zest. And when they went, each one making a discovery. For a long time the youngsters stood before the coops which held the button chickens, and they carefully plucked their feathers to be in the best possible condition for the judging.

Superintendent McVicar stated yesterday that with the exhibits that would come today the new fair as compared with last year was doubled and the stock received was of far better quality. From the poultry building the "kiddies" ventured into the women's building. Some of the boys with their faces grimy from eating cracker-jack, held back with the expression, "Dat's only for women." Nevertheless, most of them went in and after passing the wonderful paintings went around to the cooking department and here you would find them with their faces as clean as against the glass cases as safety would allow with their mouths watering, looking with eager eyes at the luscious cakes, tasty cookies and rich creamed jams.

"Gee whilkens, betcha I could clean up that cake in one bite. Ole, look at the cookies. Umm!" said one youngster patting his "tummy" in an affectionate manner as he looked at the exhibits. The superintendent in charge of this department said, "The number of exhibits is much larger than last year, and truly the quality is greatly improved. No one could doubt her word after looking at the cake and pie exhibits that were bursting with goodness."

Not many of the children halted long before the sewing department exhibit now and then a girl would pause, and from her own limited experience would express wonder at the skilled work. This exhibit one of the most wonderful on the grounds and every visitor should pay the department a visit. "While the number is greatly increased, it is a noteworthy fact that the greater majority of work is from Janesville people," said the attendant. The paintings exhibited are of skill and the relics on show are very interesting. There is an unusual display of fine quality painted china, that would repay anyone to give a close inspection.

From these buildings the small guests hurried down through the horse barns and looked with amazed wonder at the "swipes" rubbing down the lean, lithe race horses and walking them in preparation for the races. Stalls were inspected until the youngsters tired of seeing the race horses, came to the stock barns. "Oh Skinny, come on over!" pleaded an over-voiced youngster, and he climbed upon the pen fence, peering into a swine exhibit. "Gosh, look at the size of that pig," said the lad, as he opened his mouth in awe at a seven hundred pound porker. There are about 180 hogs listed in the exhibits, a record number for any fair ever held in this district. Scarcely is there such a wide variety of breeds and the quality would equal that of a national contest. There are pure Jerseys, with their sleek red hides; Hampshire, Berkshires, Poles and Chester Whites, and several others. There were exactly 307 head of cattle, some weighing as high as 2,280 pounds. There were Guernsey, Red Fries, Friesians, Friesian Shires, fat and blocky Shorthorns, Holsteins, Pole Angus and the mid-eyed, small Jerseys, with their rich milk bags.

The sheep exhibit is one which the fair men can be justly proud of. There is about two hundred sheep exhibited, of at least eight different breeds, the most commonly known being the Rambouillet, Cotswold, Merino, Hampshire, Oxford, Shropshire and Lancashire. Then some one of the tribe of youngsters spied the sixty ponies housed in temporary stalls. There was a grand rush and it was a long time before the children would leave the midges, wishing to fondle and pet them to their hearts' content. There is something about a pony that attracts children universally and certainly the children at the Janesville fair yesterday were able to content themselves and all desires of seeing ponies. Gradually the children left from the exhibits for the grandstand, stopping for another share of peanuts and pop, which only added to their enthusiasm. Run they did into the big stand and then watched the real wonders of the day. When the free attractions were staged, the five Paris sisters won big praise for their posing specialty, and the two thousand small guests applauded vigorously. The acrobatic feats pleased as did the other vaudeville attractions. The music of the Moose band won high praise.

At no time during the afternoon did the kiddies become noisy and restless, for their pleasure was too much centered on the new wonders at hand to think of unnecessary yelling and stamping. Besides the children there were about a thousand adults in the stand, and it is estimated that there were about twelve of fifteen hundred paid admissions yesterday. Not a single accident marred the fair and the police protection was unusually good. The crowds were kept clear of the track, and Chief Champion saw to it that all suspicious persons were transported from the grounds. One short-change from the new wonders at hand is so far as is known there was not a single detracting affair towards the success of the opening day of the Janesville fair.

PEACE TIME EXPORTS OF COTTON BEATEN

First Five Months of War Shows
Great Sales to Countries Across Water.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 11.—Contrary to general belief, our cotton exports for the first five months of 1915, (war time), exceeded exports for the corresponding period in 1914, (peace time).

Since war began much discussion of the cotton crop has been and is in place without the exports for the first five months of 1915, (war time), exceeded exports for the corresponding period in 1914, (peace time).

The 1914 crop was 15,873,000 bales, with 1,328,600 bales left from 1913 and 208,400 bales imported, making a total visible supply of 15,909,000 bales on hand. June 1, 1915, 12,563,000 bales had been exported or used here, leaving 4,947,000 bales.

The total bales exported from Aug. 1, 1914, to June 1, 1915, is 868,000 bales less than the same period of 1913; but for the first five months of this year 5,180,363 bales were exported as compared with 3,139,087 in the same period of 1914.

It seems likely the exports for the ensuing months will be even greater.

During the last few weeks principal factors affecting the Liverpool cotton market seem to be the following:

(a) Abundant stocks at Liverpool in excess of supply contracts.
(b) The lack of full revival of normal trade conditions in manufactured products.
(c) The good condition reported for the new cotton crop in the South. (The cotton acreage has not yet been reported.)

Minor factors which seem to have affected the Liverpool and other cotton markets are:

(a) Uncertainty as to the duration of present conditions.
(b) The quantity and disposition of prize cotton in England.
(c) The entrance of Italy into the war.

(d) The disturbance of shipping both of belligerent and neutral countries.
(e) The domestic consumption of cotton has been about as much as was anticipated, the export of cotton much larger than was anticipated, and the price received higher than most people would have been willing to predict last fall.

A system of accounts for small farmers' co-operative selling organizations has been worked out and may be obtained on request from the Department of Agriculture.

Half a million free injections of tuberculin for cattle are sent out annually by the Department of Agriculture. Any county city or State may obtain a supply free by promising to report to the government the result of its use.

Powdered hellebore mixed with water and sprinkled in and around garbage cans and like places where the larvae is deposited, will keep millions of houseflies from hatching, says the Department of Agriculture. Hellebore is cheap and does not endanger livestock or crops.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Bldora, Colo., Aug. 11.—"No men wanted" is a sign that might adorn a certain beauty spot on the hills hereabouts today. And men want to see it very much.

Minus stockings and garbed in scant Greek costume, beautiful young women dance on the green sward. Of course, there's nothing to speak of when the girls go swimming on Lake Eldora, screened from men's vulgar eyes.

They are worshipping the goddess of beauty in the human form divine up here, in a camp established by Miss Portia Sweet of Chicago and the Misses Marjorie and Charlotte Perry of Denver, disciples of the Duncans, a score or more of society buds from all sections of the country are getting "close to nature."

Interspersed with their health and beauty building frolics, the students are seriously studying Greek drama, pantomime and expression. All plays are given outdoor settings.

The camp will break up this week to reopen next July. The weather hereabout in the August is rather rigorous for Greek costume and stock-inging prancing.

"We have no use for men on this expedition," said Miss Marjorie Perry before the campers came up here.

CAN'T SEND TOBACCO TO FRENCH SOLDIERS

Postoffice Authorities Warn That Luxuries Addressed to French in Field Cannot be Delivered.

No more tobacco, cigars or cigarettes for the "boys" in the trenches of France and Flanders from relatives or patriotic Frenchmen in this country.

This is the edict of the United States postoffice department according to an order received at the postoffice in this city. Postmasters throughout the United States have received instructions to refuse all parcels and packages containing these commodities and addressed to French troops in the field or to prisoners of war in France. The department is giving this order states that the French service is utterly unable to forward these little luxuries because of the impossibility to collect from the addressee the French custom charges to which all such parcels are liable.

France imposes a heavy custom tax on tobacco imports. From the government monopoly the country secures millions of revenue annually.

The order further states that as such of these commodities which have been mailed and withheld from dispatch or which may be mailed inadvertently hereafter will be returned to the senders and the postage paid on these packages, refunded to the senders, if application is made in accordance with postal laws and regulations.

WHAT HAS NOT BEEN DONE BY LAWMAKERS RELATED BY LEAGUE

Unheaval Within the State Legislature Due to Economy Issue of Administration.

To the Members of the Home Rule and Tax Payers' League:

The present session of the legislature is drawing to a close. You are probably interested in what has been done and what is being done. We predict, however, that you will be more interested because of what has not been done. Scenes are being enacted in the state capitol, seldom, if ever, witnessed in legislative halls. What should be prompt effort, harmonious action, to carry out the people's will, has degenerated into what may be called, not only an unbecomingly but a disgraceful squabble to secure some supposed political advantage. Those who have for many years dictated the policies and controlled the business of the state, finding themselves distrusted and discredited by the people, have played the obstructionist, dog in the manger role. Their inabilities have been not only foolish, but times offensive and unpatriotic. One of them recently introduced a resolution calling for the resignation of three distinguished officials, because, it appears, that these officials asked for less money to run and manage their respective departments than the obstructionists desired to vote. Instead of being pleased and gratified at finding opportunities to compromise, they became indignant, doubtless because such a course was not in accordance with their plans. We ought not to be surprised, however, if in selecting 123 legislators, occasionally an unfit, incompetent one slips through.

During the last campaign two questions stood out clear and distinct above all others—

(A) How shall we lighten the financial burdens the people are called upon to bear? And,

(B) How shall we restore to the people the right of local self-government, and rid the state of an offensive bureaucracy?

Other questions were, and are, important, but the above two overshadowed all others. The two overlarge extent, monopolized the thought of the voters. Lower taxes and more self-government, economy in place of extravagance; no more bureaucratic methods; less official dictation and more participation by the people in the work of government—these are the things the people demanded at the last election, and what they now demand. Why are they not granted? Who is to blame for a continuation of high taxes and a financial payroll that ought to be cut down about one-half? The only answer, that can truthfully be given to these questions, is that the obstructionists in the legislature, miscalled progressives, have purposely blocked the work of reform. They, and they alone, are responsible for any failure there may be in carrying out the administration's program to give the people relief. We doubt not that these same parties will in the near future be trying to arouse the indignation of the people, in different parts of the state, because financial burdens are not lighter, and the program outlined by the league during the campaign has not been carried out.

Let us notice a few facts pertinent to this discussion: the president, of the board of control, went before the finance committee and the legislature, and stated publicly that the proposed appropriation for that board might be cut down at least $80,000, and there would still be funds enough provided for the state institutions; under their control. Instead of gladly accepting and acting on the suggestion so made by the president, the committee called him before them for a grilling examination, as if a responsible official in advising economy were attempting to injure in some way the penal and charitable institutions of the state.

The Superintendent of Public Property suggested that the appropriation for his department might be cut down $47,000, and immediately he became subject to suspicion, as if economy and efficiency could not go hand in hand.

The Dairy and Food Commissioner told the committee that the appropriation for his department might be cut

FINDS TELEPHONE IMPORTANT IN WAR

Lieut. Col. George C. Squier.

Lieut. Col. George C. Squier, former assistant chief signal officer of the U. S. army, has been abroad as an observer for the army, and has made observations of the work of the trench telephones and wires from points of observation to masked guns. He reports that the field telephone, thought to have been rendered almost unnecessary by the field radio, has again become of almost paramount importance through developments of trench warfare.

down $37,000, and immediately he is discredited and unworthy motives are attributed to him. In vain will you search legislative journals for such a record as is now being made at the state capitol.

When we turn to the university, which we have been told is the great aid to the administrative departments, and without whose help the work of those departments could not possibly be carried on, we do not find things any better. It seems absolutely impossible to get an exact, correct statement of the university finances, or one that will not in some respects mislead. The finance committee cut down the amount asked for by the university authorities for the next two years $787,000, and we are reliably informed after as large a cut as approximately $200,000. This for salaries, wages, maintenance, etc., and that, it leaves an appropriation of over $600,000 more than for the past two years. We have also been informed that the University asks for the next two years an increase of approximately $200,000. This for salaries, wages, maintenance, etc., and the ground as stated that they expect an increase of 450 students a year and that the expenses are increased.

Then stated after attempting to give figures in detail that the cost per student was not more than from $150 to $200. How the above statements can be harmonized we leave to the experts. The people, however, have to pay the taxes, and they want to know. To show what those financial burdens mean, let us suppose that the university costs the state only $1,000,000 a year. On very large loans and for long periods of time money can be gotten at about 4%. If we capitalize the above expense ($1,000,000) we find that the people are carrying for the support of the university a perpetual debt of about $25,000,000. It can not be repeated too often that during the last campaign, voters of all parties demanded financial relief. Did anyone think at that time that the university would ask for the next two years approximately $1,000,000 more than is really needed?

Some progress has been made in consolidating state boards and other agencies, and of this we will write more at length later. It is sufficient now to state that as a rule, those who have during the entire session of the legislature labored earnestly to enact into law the principles and policies of the league have not their principal opposition in those who have for years been loudly proclaiming that they are the friends of the people.

LABOR REACTIONS AFTER WORLD WAR SEEN IN ENGLAND

Organizations Helping Out Now, but Will Have Their Say to Country When Strife Closes.

London, Aug. 11. (By Mail.)—"British labor is today working hand in hand with the government to save the nation. That for the moment is the status of British labor. But—after it is all over British labor will have something to say to the British government."

"This was today the unqualified statement of Ramsey MacDonald, member of Parliament and leader of the British socialists."

The "something" that British labor will have to say to the government after the war, according to MacDonald, is that "war is unnecessary and the elements that make war possible must be wiped out."

"But in the meantime," continued MacDonald, "British labor has come to the stage of realization that the government must be helped out of its difficulty and inevitably British labor must forget the past and look to the future by helping the government fight for its existence."

British trades union members and leaders are now in khaki by thousands and tens of thousands, putting in hard licks in war munition factories and other government work, declared MacDonald.

Do you mean that labor henceforth will overlook all its industrial grievances and postpone these grievances and strikes until after the war? was asked.

"For the present labor is forced to give in. It is inevitable at this time," answered MacDonald.

Labor leaders do not object to Walter Long's national registry bill requiring all persons in England between the ages of 15 and 65 to declare their fitness for war work, but they look upon it as something that may lead to a form of conscription, according to MacDonald. He added:

"This bill embraces the provision of compulsory registration and lays down certain penalties. I hardly think it will result in conscription, but in the hands of a clever minister it can be brought around and twisted to assume practically the same form. British labor cannot object to this because its hands are tied by the penalties exacted. The workmen of this country will violently object to absolute military conscription because it is unnecessary. The government has been informed of the workmen's intention, and that is to stay in the fight and help save the country. When the country is saved the workmen will say what he has to say."

British labor, MacDonald concluded, would hardly attempt any nation-wide tie-up even in the event of impending military conscription, but would oppose such an issue in every other possible way.

Sex in Flowers.

All flowering plants have what is called pollen, which is composed of minute particles generated in the flower, and which has a definite sexuality. The male pollen seeks that union which will make for reproduction, and it has been said poetically that desire in the flowers is as intense as in any other form of life. Only the flowers don't speak our language, though we poor humans have artificially and empirically coined a "language of the flowers."

Early American Plows.

The first important invention of a plow in this country to be patented was by Jethro Wood in 1819. He was a resident of Scipio, N. Y., and the first patent for a sulky plow in America was granted to H. Brown in 1844, but practical plows of this type were not made until 1864.
